Student body creates impressions of a school

What is the personality of a school—any school? It is the attitudes of its students—in the classroom, at athletic events, toward productions. It is the thoughts that come to mind when people recall the name of a school—thoughts characteristic of both its students and its faculty. It is the unity or the lack of unity within a student body. It is the conduct of the majority during and after school. The personality of a school is nothing more than what its student body makes it. It is the overall impression conveyed to those who do not know the school. It is the common goal that unites the students.

Rebel enthusiasm for perfection produces the character of DSF

What is the personality of Douglas Freeman? What is its common goal? At Douglas Freeman, perfection is sought, strived for, and sometimes almost grasped by Rebels. It is illusive, even dimly seen, because it comes after endless drills in an auditorium of receding sunlight, after hours with books, or during extended strain on a graying muddy football field. In the chemistry lab there must be exact measurement; less than exact, and the experiment is a failure. The professional appearance of the library's bulletin board is not achieved haphazardly, but results from creative thought and careful planning.

Enthusiasm is part of the drive toward perfection. It manifests itself in many ways during day-to-day school life. It is early morning sunlight, catching blue and gray; it is a loud band; it is cheering students. Classrooms often abound with it and sometimes lack it. Its presence means animated discussions, thoughtful term papers, prize-winning Latin students. But this intentness isn't always loud or obvious with Rebels. It sometimes is nothing more than a spare moment reading a chosen book on the front steps. Each phase of school life and each of the many groups into which the students separate have their places in Douglas Freeman.

In student life common goal unites Rebels

Behind the fun and excitement of high school life there is hard work. Much time is spent on the small things which result in successful projects, polished dramatic productions, and spirited athletic events. The hours of preparation which precede an event become as meaningful to Rebels as the actual presentation. Through working together with classmates and faculty toward a common goal, Rebels begin to feel that they belong to Douglas Freeman; it is then that the school becomes their own.

DSF Alumna crowns Judy Homecoming Queen

"Pass the napkins!" shouted hard-working Freemanites as they hurriedly disguised cars under fluffy tissues and swirling crepe paper. Hours flew, and weary workers had only minutes to straighten crooked letters, stuff final napkins into place, and then head for a hasty supper before parade time.

As the homecoming parade assembled on Bexhill Road, fidgety princesses settled themselves atop their respective floats. Snatches of excited conversation were drowned out by the blare of a trumpet or the loud, low notes of a tuba, and sophomore princesses were caught up in the thrill and excitement of participating in their first Homecoming. The frantic driver of a wandering float sought his place in line as the driver of the lead car started its motor, shifted into drive, and launched the 1960 Homecoming parade on its way.

The shrill blast of the referee's whistle signaled for the crowd to stand for the kick-off. Rebel spirit and enthusiasm carried over onto the field, and at halftime the score read Rebels 14, George Wythe 7.

The climax of the evening neared as princesses lined the football field. Suspense mounted, then tension broke as loud cheers acclaimed Gwen Crowder Maid of Honor. Silence fell, to be broken by the spontaneous applause that erupted as Mr. W. Royal crowned his beaming daughter Judy 1960 Homecoming Queen.

Boasting a final score of 24-16, a victorious Rebel team retired to prepare for the traditional "Harvest Hop" to dance and reminisce about a memorable evening.

Mock election, senior play, pace fall days

COAXING patient cafeteria assistants for additional food, hungry Rebels appease their demanding appetites before afternoon classes.

Clutching wrinkled homeroom votes in nervous hands, delegates waited for the roll call to begin. "Alabama," and the response, "Mr. Chairman . . .," put Douglas Freeman's mock election into full swing. Climaxing weeks of classroom debates, caustic arguments and vigorous campaigning, Rebel voters favored Richard M. Nixon over his opponent John F. Kennedy.

Red velvet curtains parted and a crowded auditorium fell silent as the 1961 senior class play began. Members of the mad-cap Sycamore family contributed to the philosophy, "You Can't Take It with You."

Mary Jo Gee and Paul Ransford as Alice Sycamore and Tony Kirby sought romance amidst a bevy of Alice's eccentric relatives and Tony's sophisticated parents, played by Tim O'Keefe and Charlotte Tomlinson. Often embarrassing Alice in her attempts to entertain her beau were Gwen Crowder as Essie, Alice's ballet-dancing sister; Buddy White as Essie's husband, whose innocent printing press experiments invited trouble to the Sycamore household; and Anne Barden and Arthur McKay as the delightful Mr. and Mrs. Sycamore. Jim Seymore portrayed the sprightly grandfather, the object of an inquiring Internal Revenue Department anxious to collect unpaid taxes. Ben Blanton, an ambitious young tax collector, met with frustration in vain attempts to extract the money from him.

Directed by Miss Marlise Bok, other cast members were Kent McNeil, Mr. DiPinna; Tim Sheldon, Mr. Kolenkov; Suzanne Frayser, Grand Duchess Olga Katrina.

As golden Indian summer days of autumn yielded to chill, brisk winter, pre-Christmas activities filled calendars of active Freemanites. Spectators who had cheered at pep rallies and Friday night football games now could play a part in Stunt Night which loomed ahead.

Amidst noisy hours of after-school rehearsals and the confusion of preparing skits, fitting costumes, and learning lines, Stunt Night unfolded. Before a delighted audience, reality and fantasy combined as figures emerged from the depths of history and found themselves face to face with favorites from childhood stories.

The taking of group pictures added to the growing excitement of the approaching Christmas holiday. Interrupting an instructor's lecture, the soft click of the public address system brought a hushed silence. The unfamiliar voice of a yearbook staff member rang out, "Would members of the French Club please come to the gym . . ." Pleased students thronged out of classes, leaving helpless teachers staring at empty desks and a few restless listeners. Then came the long-awaited holiday.

Days of partying and exchanging Christmas gifts slipped by, and school was again in session; a comparative quiet descended upon the building. Young scholars entered classrooms reciting lines from Macbeth and emerged memorizing logarithm tables. Places not designed for the purpose became places of learning; the auditorium, empty corridors, even the steps, all became makeshift study halls; exams lay immediately ahead.

Seniors place orders for caps and gowns

With the harrowing experience of mid-term exams behind them, foot-loose Freemanites fell in step with the second act of school life. Trading the frosty air of outdoor stadiums for the warmth of the gymnasium, spirited Rebels gathered to cheer at the initial game of the basketball season.

Amid jumbled activities of club meetings, homework, and basketball games, the spirit of Dan Cupid pervaded the atmosphere at DSF with the coming of the annual FBLA Sweetheart Dance. Red and white valentines decorated the walls of the cafeteria, while musical notes from the horns of the "Hi Five" floated among the dancing couples.

The loud clang of an old-fashioned school bell caused the incessant chatter of a crowded auditorium to fade away; an announcer proclaimed the beginning of the WRNL Radio Scholarship Quiz. Competing against seniors from Midlothian and Hopewell High Schools for the $500 scholarship to the University of Richmond, Douglas Freeman's entrant, Arthur McKay tied for second place. Throughout the oral question-and-answer session, cooperative Rebels, at a signal from the MC, offered a rousing hand of applause for correct answers from the three contestants.

Classroom activities continued at a rapid pace. In senior classes a growing restlessness was noticeable as graduation appeared on the not-too-distant horizon. Thoughts once centered around classmates and schoolwork turned to college and vocations. The time of measuring for caps and gowns confronted upperclassmen and brought on the realization that their high school days were dwindling rapidly.

WARM, SUNNY DAYS THAT MARKED WINTER'S YIELDING TO SPRING DREW GIRLS' GYM CLASSES OUTSIDE.

Spring makes its tardy entrance at DSF

RECALLING LINES as Mrs. Evelyn Balthis pins his toga, Tim O'Keefe prepares for the Latin skit of Language Emphasis Week.

"If winter comes, can spring be far behind?" Free-manites began to wonder, as April's entrance showed no signs of the cold weather's abating. Hopes rose with the arrival of a few warm days and brave blossoms, only to plummet downward with another seige of wintry weather. Up went convertible tops, and back inside went gym classes.

Talent, which knows no season, received an opportunity to reveal itself as Broadway melodies in the auditorium introduced Junior Talent Night. Specialties ranged from a modern ballet to novelty instrumental groups, all set against the glamour of famed New York night spots.

Accompanied by a fanfare of bake sales and assembly programs, Language Emphasis Week made its appearance. Members of language clubs became characters from the literature of their chosen tongue: Cicero spoke again before the Roman Senate against the Catalinian conspiracy; William Tell defied his tyrannical German overlord and faced a dangerous aftermath; Old Spain came to life with an epic about the knight El Cid. On bulletin boards appeared silhouettes of figures from history and mythology with the Library Club offering a prize for identification of the mystery portraits.

Sprinkling a gay New Orleans flavor over the gym with colorful balloons and shops decorated with grill work, sophomores began preparations for their dance.

At last sunny days began to appear more regularly. Gym classes returned to the athletic field; the crack of softballs against bats drifted within hearing. With a flood of warmth and sunshine, spring arrived at DSF.

Term papers, plays, spring sports invade DSF

MARGARET BRAUNER REPORTS to a government class some amusing incidents experienced as a County Day Delegate.

Before the arrival of sultry spring days, school bus seats had held three people almost comfortably; now full cotton skirts and stiff crinolines left room for only two. Effects of the vernal weather spread to classrooms where listless Rebels dreaming of graduation or summer vacation knew well the feeling of being unprepared when called upon to answer questions in class. In the chemistry lab students threw windows open to let warm spring breezes permeate the chemical-laden air.

Last on the calendar of dramatic portrayals of the year came the one-act plays. Try-outs began, parts were cast, and the auditorium again became the scene of constant activity. Actors studied and learned scripts as opening night drew near. Then, before a full house, they presented a variety of moods; these shaded from the intensely dramatic "Where the Cross Is Made" to lighter drama from "The Lark," the contemporary humor of "The Dancers," and the subtle comedy of "Alice in Wonderland."

Choosing topics ranging from "Six Roads to the White House," to "Communism Within the United States," senior Rebels in honors classes began to tackle government term papers. In an attempt to meet a final deadline, frantic seniors spent hours browsing through card catalogues and searching for checked-out library books. Rough drafts written, hasty arrangements were made for the typing of the final copies. For most of them, it would be the last high school term paper.

Mystic Japanese theme enchants Rebel seniors

Bermuda-clad seniors tip-toed through strips of blue ceiling that lay on the floor. In a matter of moments boys tugging at wires would raise them to become a billowing sky. Agile-fingered girls sat twisting strips of paper into petals of pink blossoms. Behind them rose a jumbled pillar of waiting card tables.

As the sky was raised, dauntless boys scampered up a scaffold to repair strips of dangling ceiling and adjust unevenly-spaced crepe paper. Fearing the height of the scaffold, timid girls remained below to paint oriental murals and cover bare gym walls with branches of green leaves and mock cherry blossoms. Hours of stapling, painting, and mounting murals ensued; then the last table cloth was spread and sprinkled with pink petals.

Afternoon sunlight faded into evening. Rested seniors returned in swaying formals and handsome tuxedos to a transformed gymnasium, a mystic Japanese wonderland.

Nine-fifteen drew near; entering in gowns expressive of the "Sayonara" theme came ladies of the court—Cathy Shipman, Linda Leard, Diane Jackson, Charlotte Taylor, Linda Basheer, Gwen Crowder, Lora Gill, Mary Jo Gee, Cynthia Bothwell, Carol and Betty Creedle, and Judy Royal. Their escorts were: Bucky Pritchard, Don Rawlings, Phil Stone, Paul Ransford, Bob Fleet, Ben Blanton, Tommy Ranson, Jim Seymore, George Miffleton, John and Al Byrne, and Dave Fahy.

Busy Spring schedules fill last days at DSF

Warm weather seemed to quicken the pace of school life. Activity-filled days sped by, leaving in their wake a multitude of term papers, spring sports, and final productions.

The gym resounded with the voices of enthusiastic sophomores, busy in preparation for the bi-annual gym-boree. With light costumes providing "Silhouettes in White" against dark backdrops, acrobats and tumblers performed before a responsive audience.

In the halls posters went up over night as campaign managers urged Rebel voters to elect their candidates for SCA offices. Speeches followed; then came election day when Rebels entered voting booths to make their choices by marking ballots.

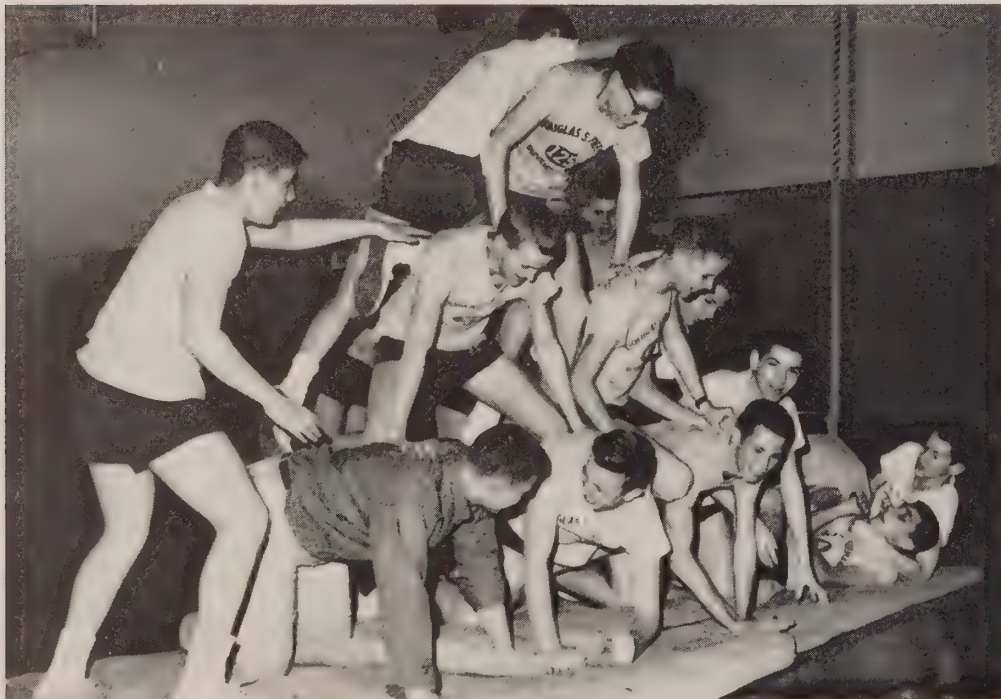

Cheerleading try-outs got under way as anguished girls made choices between holding a position on a publication's staff or being a cheerleader. In the mornings before classes, the faces of excited contestants mirrored different reactions as they read the posted names of those who had made the final round of cheerleading try-outs.

From the athletic field exuberant shouts filled the air as track fans voiced their approval of a nimble-footed cinderman who broke the tape in a burst of speed.

Suddenly, summer vacation clearly appeared out of the flurry of activities surrounding the end of the year. Final exams were only a slight annoyance to Rebels who hurried to complete unfinished tasks before leaving DSF.

In organizations
students work as groups for DSF

Clubs and other group organizations play an important part in the progress of Douglas Freeman. Some members work diligently for improvement of the publications; others in service clubs show responsibility to their school and community through volunteer work; people in science and language clubs sponsor the creative Science Fair and Language Emphasis Week. For the reticent student a group affords the opportunity to belong. It is an outlet for the talented. Almost every Rebel is active as part of a group; every group is active for Douglas Freeman.

SCA supports drive for P-TA membership

The mock political rally and election sponsored by the SCA found enthusiastic students supporting their preferred candidates with loud cheers and posters. Prior to the election, SCA committees prepared for the event by designating homerooms as individual states. The Ways and Means Committee provided voting precincts.

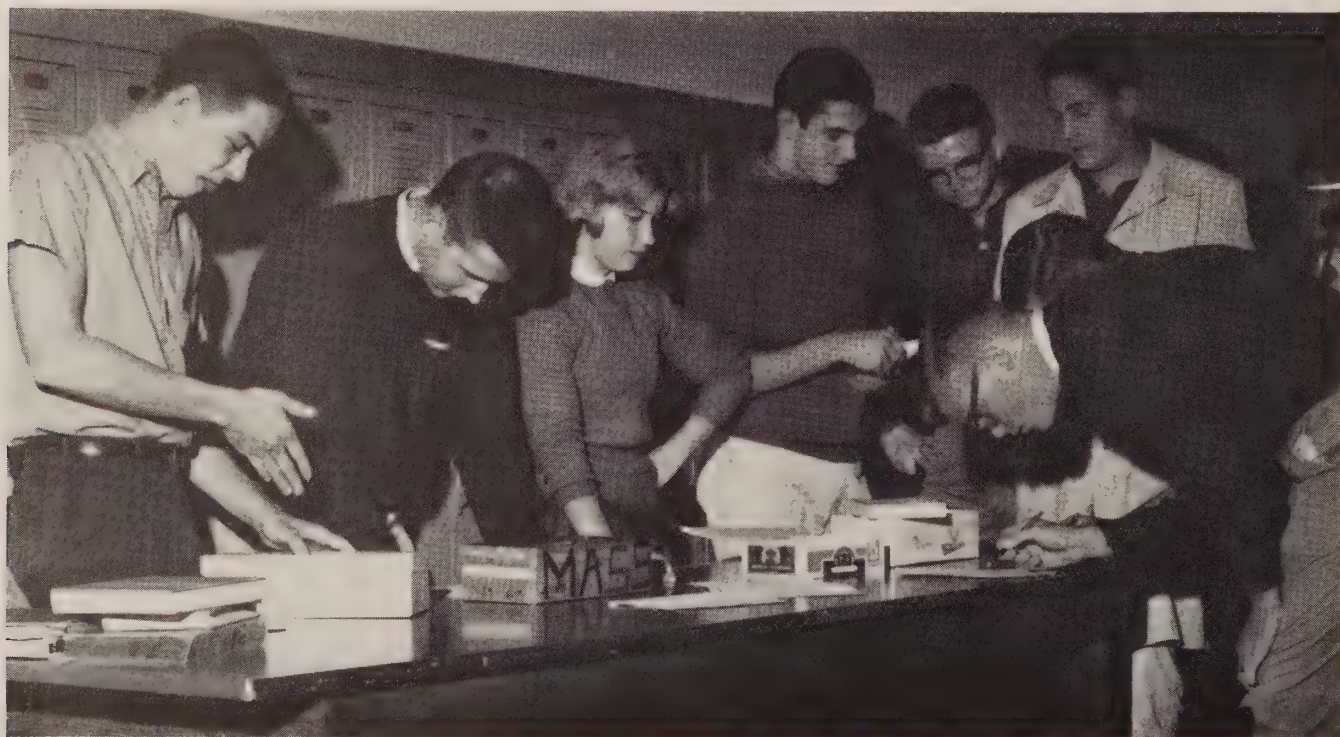

The Student Cooperative Association aided the P-TA in a membership drive to increase its enrollment. A prize of $100 prompted each class to enlist the largest number of families. After the drive, the Parent Teachers' Association awarded the prize to the Junior Class, which used the money to finance class activities.

The Rebel Yell handbooks, published by the SCA, proved to be a necessary item for in-coming sophomores. The booklet contained information about the history, curriculum and regulations of Douglas Freeman. It also gave an explanation of school organizations, of the merit system and of the systems for limiting participation in school activities.

In November the SCA sent twelve delegates to the Richmond District Student Cooperative Association meeting at Lee-Davis High School. The representatives attended panels to discuss topics including SCA aims, objectives and organizations, problem solving, and leadership training. Jim Seymore, Diane Miller, Bob Ackerly, and Miss Rose Frost went to the State SCA Convention at Mary Washington College in April. The convention's theme was "Triumph through Integrity."

During the year the Student Council enforced the limitation system and promoted better representation at meetings. In addition to its regular functions, the SCA entered a float in the Homecoming Parade. The council decorated their car with miniature models of the SCA gavel and constitution. Princess Sandy Williams rode the float which won second prize in parade competition.

The annual money-making project sponsored by the SCA put Ole King Cole on a throne for Stunt Night. Chanting Downbeats introduced each skit for the enjoyment of King Cole and his subjects, the audience. The Classical Society captured first prize with its presentation of a Greek tragedy.

Students passed an amendment to the Constitution which would schedule the election of SCA officers a month earlier. The term would then offer an extra month of training for those elected for the following year.

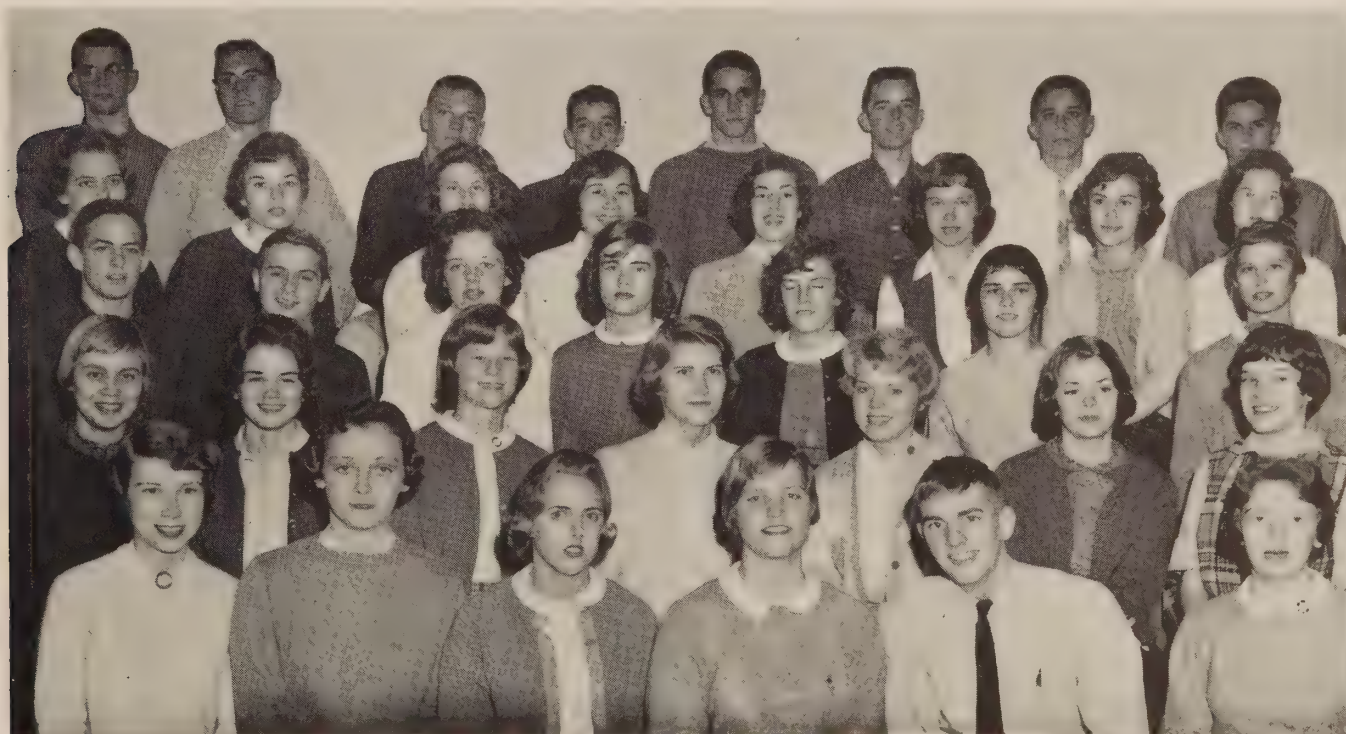

Miss Ada Land advised Student Council projects and activities. Serving as president, Jim Seymore conducted council meetings and school assemblies. Other student-elected officers were Bob Ackerly, vice-president; Carolyn Hitt, secretary; and Diane Miller, treasurer.

Honor Society project salutes DSF scholars

Behind the concealing curtain pandemonium reigned. Frantic whispers of, "Where are the matches?" and, "What if I can't find him?" flew back and forth as black-robed members of the National Honor Society rustled about, moving chairs and checking candles in last-minute preparations for their annual fall tapping assembly. The lights dimmed, the audience quieted, and the curtains opened. Speeches on the four requisites for initiation into the honorary organization—character, leadership, service and scholarship—set the mood for the solemn ceremony.

As their project for the year, the NHS instituted a more practical means of recognizing scholastic achievement through the donation of a permanent plaque listing the names of students who are on honor rolls each six-week grading period.

Chess Club attracts enthusiastic Rebels

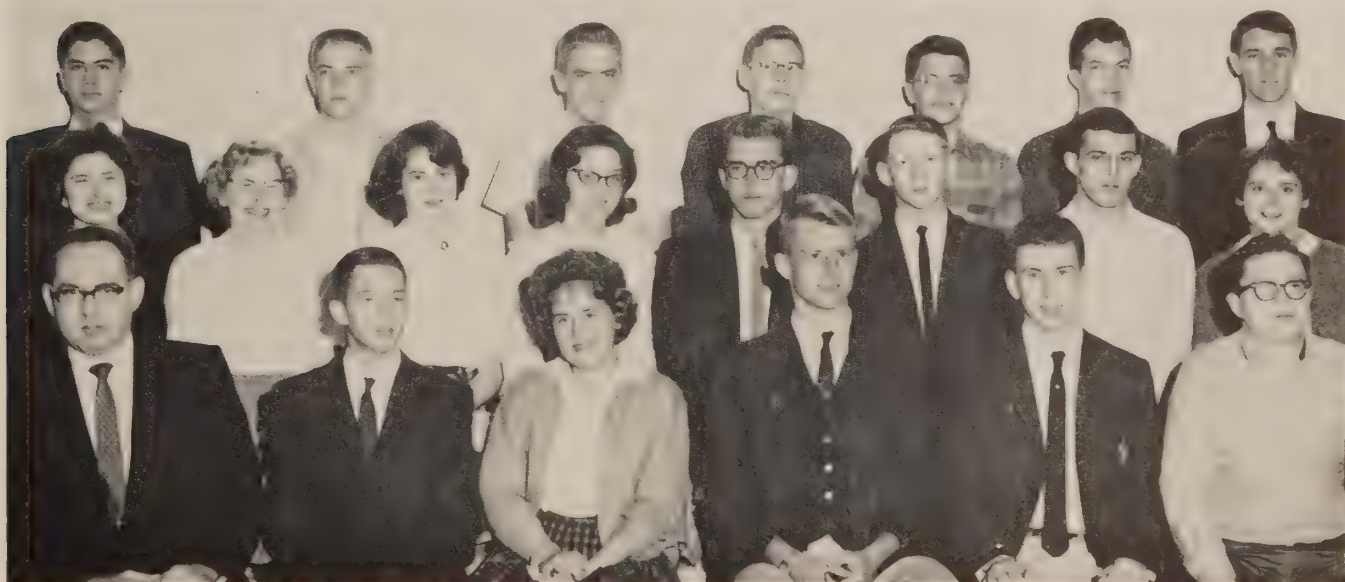

Checkmate! This was the cry of a triumphant player as he made the move to defeat his opponent. Members of the DSF Chess Club shouted the magic word in their Stunt Night skit, "Lightning Chess," a satirical version of a football game. Earlier in the year the members had elected Suzanne Frayser to represent them in the Homecoming Parade. They decorated their float to illustrate an essential item of the club, a chessboard.

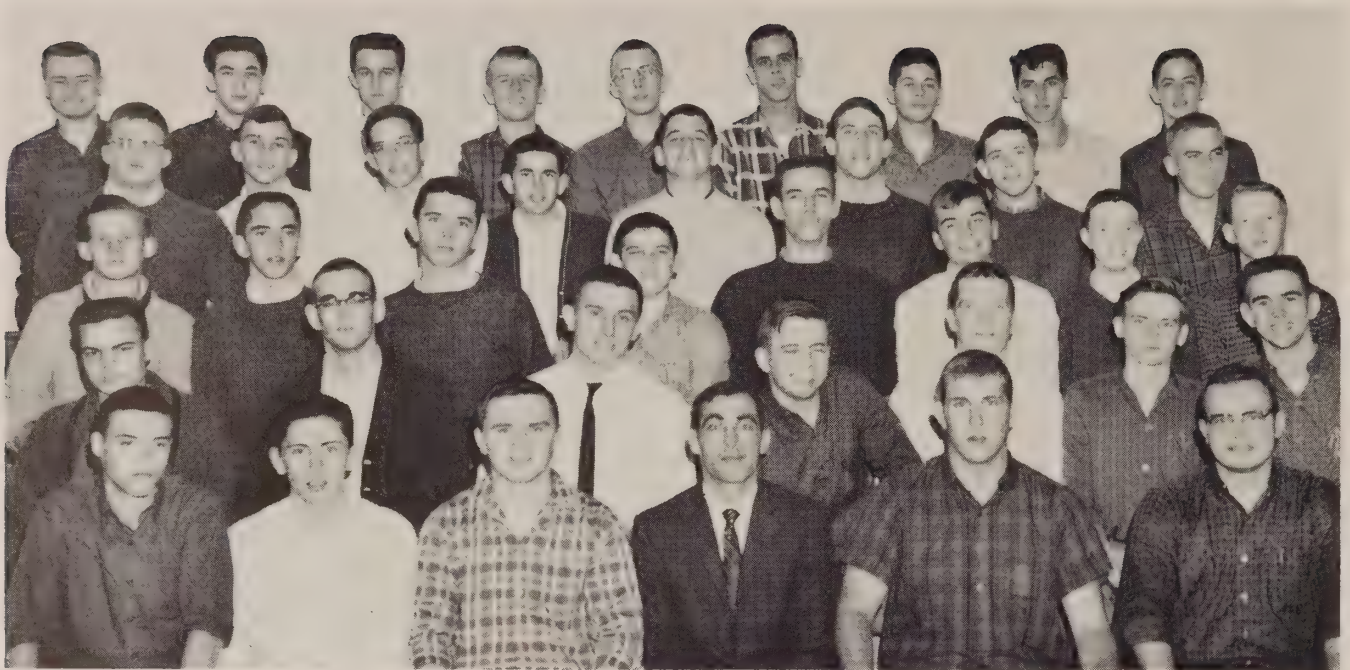

Club membership is based on a student's interest in playing chess, but during the meetings members held challenge matches for the positions on the club's team. Organized three years ago, the club has gained in popularity among students. Each year the members have held matches with Thomas Jefferson and Highland Springs High Schools. The matches are played by eight team members with a fixed time limit to each move and game. This year the club established a record of four wins and three losses.

Arthur McKay served as president of the club; Ray Saunders, vice-president; and Charlotte Tomlinson, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Gerald Ezekiel advised the club's activities.

KVG's receive trophy in county competition

"A grass fire is creeping up the hill! Trees in the church yard might blaze!" These were the thoughts racing through the minds of fifth period students in the west wing as they watched flames climb the hill. Word was sent to Mr. Richard Anthony, and he in turn alerted the KVG's who rushed to the hill and quickly subdued the blaze started by an undetected spark from one of Mr. Gerald Ezekiel's sodium explosions.

Later in the year, the glitter of gold was once again brought to the trophy case at Douglas Freeman. Members of the Keep Virginia Green Club received the trophy when they were rated the best fire fighting crew of the Henrico County high schools. In February the team workers participated in the Tri-County contest at Charles City, where the group ranked third in competition.

During the three years of the club's existence, members have assisted wardens in suppressing forest fires. This year the group, sponsored by Mr. Richard Anthony, adopted the project of planting pine seedlings. Crew leaders Jay Cox and Larry Williams directed the KVG's in planting the seedlings throughout county areas designated by fire wardens.

Membership in the club is open to any boy who is sixteen years of age with an interest in the preservation of wildlife and in the conservation of Virginia's forests.

Foreign missionaries speak to French Club

"What did they say?" Desperately wishing for a French dictionary, French Club members had an opportunity to test their translating ability at one of the regular Sunday afternoon meetings. The cause of their bewilderment was an informal talk given by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eckels, American missionaries to France.

First on the fall agenda was a welcoming tea for new members selected on the basis of grades and number of completed years of French. With the theme "Friends Across the Ocean," club princess Gail Murphey rode a Homecoming float which displayed replicas of the Eiffel Tower and Statue of Liberty. For Stunt Night, members performed scenes from Joan of Arc.

"La Dernière Classe" was the presentation of French students in an assembly with other language clubs during Language Emphasis Week. In April the group enjoyed their annual bus trip to Washington, D. C., where they visited the French Embassy and dined in a French restaurant.

Advising the club this year was Miss Martha Kellogg. She was assisted by Gail Murphey, president; Nell Steelman, vice-president; Barbara Mannhardt, secretary; and Wayne Rice, treasurer.

Students of German enact classic favorites

Twang! The arrow of William Tell zipped through the air to pierce an imaginary apple on the head of his trembling son as German Club members enacted scenes from the classic play by Friedrich Schiller. Bill Jones portrayed the famed father, William; Gary Matuck was Tell's son, and Joe Bobb played the tyrannical governor. The historical skit and a traditional bake sale were the club's contribution to Language Emphasis Week.

With Penny Sanford as their Homecoming princess, the club appropriately used for their parade float a German made Volkswagon disguised as a castle. In December the members offered to the audience of Stunt Night a German version of the fantasy "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Ralph Faulhaber as Prince Charming, rescued the beautiful Snow White, played by his sister, Joan. The seven dwarfs, a cruel witch and several ladies of the court completed the German speaking cast.

Present day Germany did not seem so remote when Jim Bobb, a serviceman in the U. S. Army, spoke to the students about his experiences while stationed there. Jim, a Douglas Freeman alumnus, showed color slides and told the interested members his impressions of the German people and their customs.

Miss Marlise Bok, German instructor, advised the club again this year. She was assisted by Dick Schultz, president; John Byrne, vice-president; Joan Faulhaber, secretary; and Fred Gallash, treasurer.

Spanish Club performs legendary epic "El Cid"

DOUG SALTER, JULIAN CAMPBELL AND MONROE BAISDEN portray their fiery roles in the Spanish classic "El Cid."

El Cid, the dashing Spanish adventurer, stepped out of the exciting pages of an epic poem and strode onto the DSF stage in a Language Emphasis Week assembly. With Doug Salter playing the leading role of the Cid, members of the Spanish Club enacted the centuries-old legend about one of the great Spanish national heroes.

Gay gilt lettering and a paper maché bull's head mounted on the hood of a flame red MG produced a daring Spanish effect on the club's Homecoming Parade float. Senior Donna Robinson held the seat of honor as Spanish Club princess.

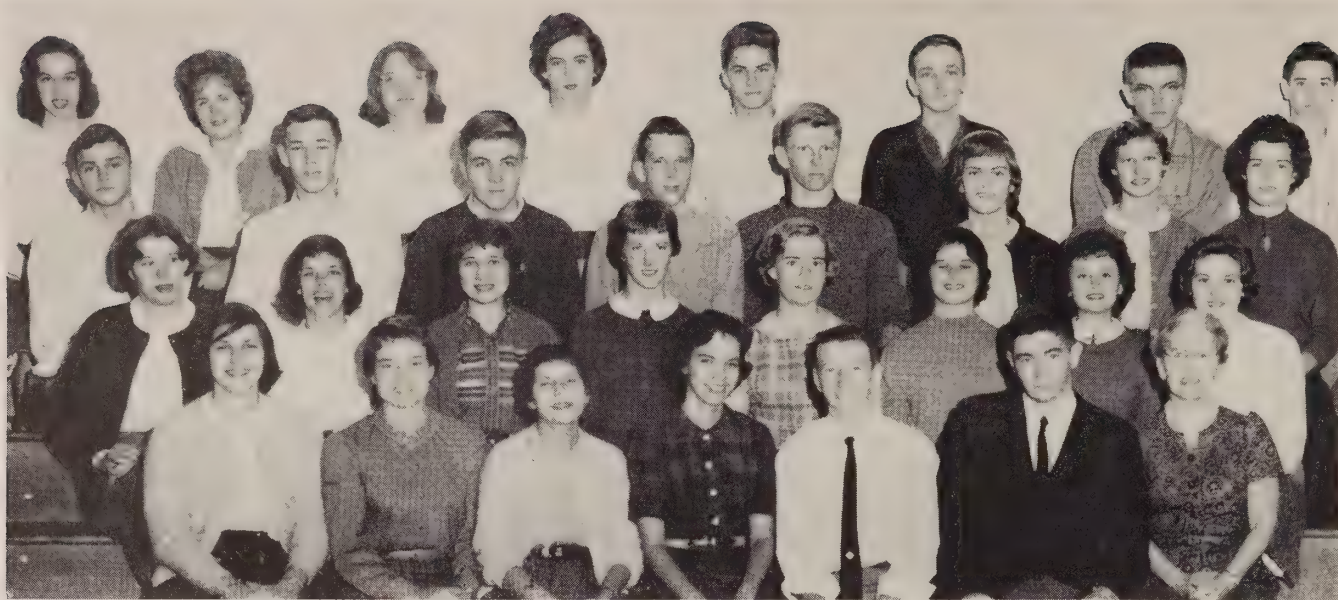

Eligible students received invitations to join the club at the beginning of the second semester, in time to take part in the presentation of a gift to the Language Department. At the monthly Monday meetings colorful movies and slides on Spain provided varied discussion topics. The informative programs also served to stimulate interest in Spanish culture and to supplement classwork.

Adding a touch of authenticity through her Spanish ancestry, Miss Beatriz de Gorgorza served with Miss Elinor Chilton as co-advisor of club activities this year. Mary Jo Gee led the group as president, assisted by Kay Land, vice-president; Phoebe Flinn, secretary; and Bruce Henry, treasurer.

Greek melodrama places first in Stunt Night

GARBED IN GREEK ATTIRE, Anne Barden and Stan Hughes enact a scene from the winning Latin Club Stunt Night skit.

With Anne Barden tripping deliberately across the stage in her ill-fitting toga, the Classical Society captured Stunt Night's $10 first prize. This satirical Greek tragedy evolved around possible fratricide with subtle stage antics from the chorus and performers, including a green sea goddess and an enraged brother.

Members broke tradition this year by holding their first togaless Christmas dance; the semi-formal party served as the initial induction event for the year.

Censors in softly draped togas and a background of solemn Classical Society members produced the dignified mood in February for the announcement of new club members during an assembly in the softly lighted auditorium. These students, chosen from juniors and sophomores in Latin I or Latin II, must have achieved an A average for the first semester to be considered for membership. Following the reading of names, consul Tim O'Keefe sliced an apple with a knife warmed in the flame of interest for classical civilization, thus ending the formal ceremony except for the traditional tea in the library after school. At this meeting excited slaves listened intently as Miss Mary Beaty of Westhampton College compared college and high school Greek and Latin courses.

For Language Emphasis Week Jay Hereford, skillfully portraying Cicero, delivered the great Roman orator's speech against Cataline before senators from third year Latin. Togas, bordered with distinguishing red, set the senators apart from the notorious conspirator.

TOGAS, SIGNIFYING SLAVES, are the distinctive feature of the Latin Club bake sale during Language Emphasis Week.

Trojan costumes and decorations created the atmosphere for the Classical Society's annual spring banquet in April. The slaves further elaborated the theme with a mock chariot race around the cafeteria. The Vergil, Cicero, and Caesar classes each sponsored a chariot, complete with enthusiastic cheers and bold colors. Favors for this banquet consisted of jewelry, rings and pendants, and ivy head-wreaths prepared by the club members. Traditional olives, nuts, and fruits followed the main course of the banquet feast.

Consuls Tim O'Keefe and Carolyn Brewster carried out all Classical Society projects this year, assisted by Agnes Brown, Secretarius-Curatorium, Charles Elliott, quaestor, and Lynn Smithey, censor. Mrs. Evelyn Balthis, who again served as advisor, directed the club's over-all activities.

Needy families receive festive CYL donations

While tramping feet and chattering voices mingled in the before-school hubbub upstairs, a group of girls bowed their heads in quiet reverence in the seclusion of the lunchroom. In preparation for the day's challenges conscientious students spent fifteen minutes each morning in the auxiliary cafeteria at Douglas Freeman, listening attentively to Biblical excerpts, religious stories, and proverbial thoughts. These students composed the Christian Youth League, a service organization stressing fellowship and unification of goals and abilities in all phases of life.

At Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter the group gathered food and clothing in decorative baskets to be sent to needy families in Virginia, especially in the Richmond and Norfolk area. By raising money through several school bake sales, the CYL contributed financial support to the underprivileged.

Members, each interested in organized Christian work, varied their monthly program meetings by engaging speakers from all walks of life. These speakers, whose occupations ranged from educators to clergymen, gave informative talks of valued significance.

Mrs. Itasca Mapp served as the CYL advisor, assisted by Penny Sanford, president; Nancy Morris, vice-president; Helen Maynard, secretary; and Jerry Howard, treasurer.

Members model latest styles at fashion show

The model boy became more than an ideal this year as Freeman's Future Homemakers sponsored an afternoon fashion show at Thalhimers. "As You Like It," the theme for this event, included popular styles modeled by several of the FHA members and male escorts chosen from Douglas Freeman. The show provided enjoyment for the appreciative audience, and the admission charged furnished a treasury increase.

For the Homecoming Parade these ingenious students decorated their car with hundreds of soft, white napkins, depicting a convincing imitation of a rolling pin, and a baker.

All girls interested in homemaking, who have taken or are presently taking a Home Economics class, are eligible to join the club. Their initiation has a gratifying and profitable twist, since it is spent in collecting provisions for the Goodwill Industry. The second induction ceremony is formal, complete with soft music and flickering candles. A gold pin awarded at either initiation shows a small cottage enclosed in a protective octagon, carefully held in outstretched hands.

Warm sunshine and pleasant breezes stimulated the imagination of FHA members for planning new events at their annual spring picnic, where students enjoyed a welcome change from the classroom.

The club, one of Freeman's first, was sponsored by Mrs. Martha Perkins. Serving as president was Martha Rutty assisted by Marye Cunningham, vice-president; Terry Gary, secretary; Archer Schermerhorn, treasurer; and Mary Morrison, parliamentarian.

Future nurses observe rescue squad technique

A throbbing heart, an x-ray machine, and the children's ward captured the attention of DSF's future nurses during their field trip to Richmond Memorial Hospital in the early fall. Later in February, the Freemanites visited the Tuckahoe Rescue Squad to observe its activities and equipment.

The club, devoted to promoting knowledge and interest in medical fields, also emphasized the importance of teamwork in service. Any girl who has a keen interest in nursing may join.

As service projects this year, the group planned their annual Christmas and Easter events. At Christmas they prepared bright red paper chimneys and candles filled with decorative candies for the patients at McGuire's Veterans Hospital. Multi-colored woven baskets and confections brightened the children's ward of St. Philip's Hospital at Easter.

President Karen Kooger directed all events this year, assisted by Betty Garner, vice-president; Rita Allman, secretary; and Derry Ware, treasurer. Mrs. Jean O'Keefe again served as advisor for the organization.

Future teachers train for academic careers

An open textbook mounted on the aqua napkin-padded trunk of the FTA Homecoming float formed the background for club princess, Janet Hartman. Later in the fall, Janet and Sarah Carter attended the state-wide Future Teachers of America Convention at the Hotel John Marshall. Sarah was elected to serve as talent show chairman for the convention.

During monthly meetings the members reviewed different types of education and learned teaching techniques. They invited several speakers, including Miss Jeanne Saunders of Douglas Freeman, who spoke to the group about advantages of attending a college with a strong curriculum in education.

Observing the tradition of a candlelight initiation, the Future Teachers of America accepted new members in the spring. In addition to maintaining a "C" average, students interested in joining the club had to complete a questionnaire and write an essay concerning membership in the FTA.

Mrs. Edna Meadows advised club activities and aided the members in preparing for educational careers. The future teachers chose Wilson Ross as their president. Serving with her were Sarah Carter, vice-president; Janet Hartman, secretary; and Carol Ann Creedle, treasurer.

Cupid presides over annual FBLA dance

Music by the Hi Five and a backdrop depicting Cupid's activities provided the setting for the FBLA Sweetheart Dance in February. While girls in frothy party dresses were being whirled around the floor, they waited expectantly for the announcement of the queen. The proclamation of sophomore Suzanne Brown as the 1961 Sweetheart climaxed the annual dance.

Bonnie Bradshaw reigned as the club's princess in Homecoming festivities. For their float entry, FBLA members transformed a black Cadillac into a fluffy yellow mass with hundreds of napkins strung through badminton nets. On the trunk of the car they placed a typewriter made of cardboard, and bottle caps covered with blue foil served as the keys.

Programs during the year emphasized the theme, "The Junior Executive," and presented steps toward becoming a good businesswoman. Speakers included Mrs. Blanche Cofer, Administrative Supervisor of Employment at the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company; Mr. John L. Epps, Jr., President of Richmond Life Insurance Company; and Mrs. Mary Carlton, chairman of Education of the National Secretaries Association.

In March a busload of FBLA members traveled to Mary Washington College to attend the yearly regional convention. Earlier in the year several DSF members had been to the planning meeting, where the convention's program and activities were formulated. President Phyllis Baughan entered the convention's Miss FBLA contest and received second place. To achieve this honor she had to take the National Business Entrance Test, on which all representatives, in order to qualify for finals, had to score 65 or over. Finalists were interviewed by college professors, who judged the girls on their poise, knowledge of business principles, personal appearance, and evidences of career planning.

Since the Future Business Leaders of America is designed primarily for those interested in a career in the business field, students who wish to join must be taking at least one business subject. Members develop a strong, enterprising leadership and the ability to compete honorably with their colleagues on the local, state, and national levels.

Miss Neil Ward, who is an alumna of Douglas Freeman and a former president of the Commercial Club, sponsored the FBLA this year. She was assisted by Phyllis Baughan, president; Dulany Deyerle, vice-president; Carole Dowdy, secretary; Connie Vaughan, treasurer; Connie Pintavalle, reporter; Judy Powers, historian; and Bonnie Bradshaw, parliamentarian.

New honorary society acknowledges scientists

The grind of motors, the glow of tubes, and the bubbling of acids, followed by exclamations of, "It works!" were typical sounds at Douglas Freeman's Science Fair. Members of the Physical Science Society, Jim Seymore and Conrad Hall, represented their club in the chemistry division and the physics division. Jim's project demonstrated a fuel cell, a device which converted chemical energy into electrical energy to power a small motor. Conrad placed second with his electrically controlled model steamboat, an original project containing intricate hand-made parts.

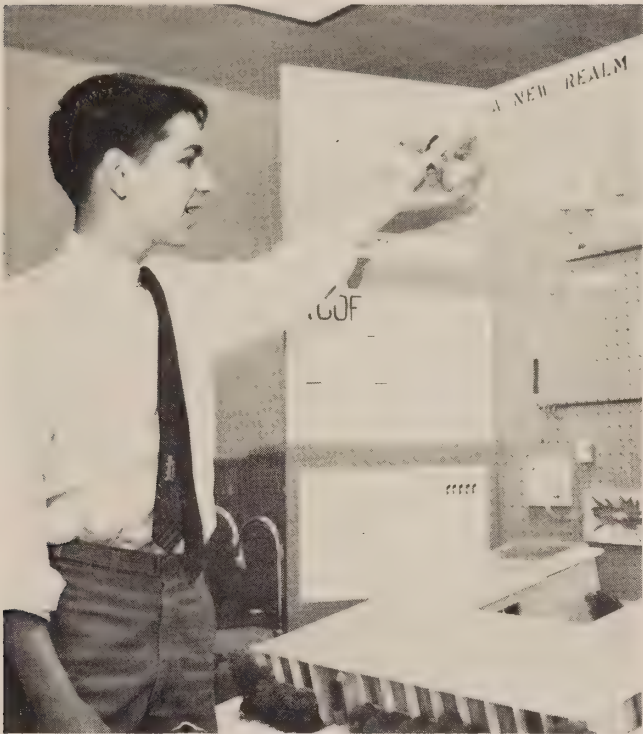

The newly formed club, affiliated with the Virginia Junior Academy of Science, promoted interests in the extensive field of physical science. The honorary society selected members on the basis of their semester averages in advanced science courses. Each member was required to prepare a project or give a lecture to the club.

Mr. Gerald Ezekiel, chemistry instructor, sponsored the activities and projects of the club. He was assisted by Dick Shultz, president; Bob Kirchner, vice-president; and Margaret Brawner, secretary-treasurer.

ADDING the conclusive ingredient, Dick Shultz demonstrates a chemical principle for other Physical Science Club members.

Sophomores take top honors in Science Fair

CHARLES JONES demonstrates his solar heating unit which placed first at the annual University of Richmond Science Fair.

"Get out of the sunlight," was the forceful cry that spectators heard at Douglas Freeman's annual Science Fair. These words came from sophomore Charles Jones, who had perfected a cheaper and more useful solar heating unit. His working model demonstrated the principles of a simpler solar-powered, hydraulic heating plant, which should be more economical and smaller than the present heating systems used in homes today. Although a member of the Biology Club, Charles took top honors in the Chemistry-Physics division at DSF and at the University of Richmond. Another Science Fair first place went to sophomore Susie Hays for a deer hide which she had tanned. During the hunting season, Susie obtained the hide, and after studying magazine articles concerning methods of home tanning, she scraped, salted, and dried it.

At each monthly meeting, the vice-president presented an exhibition or a report concerning one of the phases of biology. During one meeting, the club officers held a panel discussion pertaining to relativity. Panelists explained the relationship between tangible objects and ideas; club members analyzed the results.

Miss Montelle Boisseau sponsored the Biology Club, aided by Carolyn Hitt, president; Carole Gibson, vice-president; Charles Jones, treasurer; and Barbara Sweeney, secretary.

Float wins award for second consecutive year

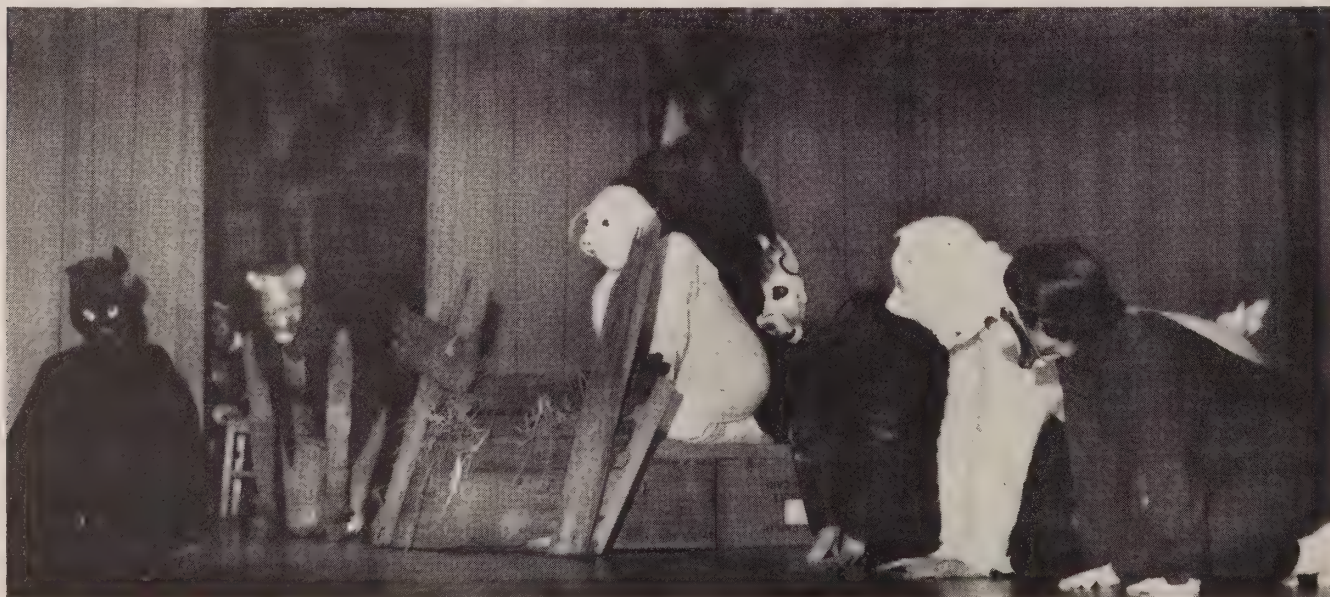

"First prize winner—Library Club!" Following this announcement a vintage automobile filled with club members chugged away with the highest award in Homecoming float competition. Having taken honors for the second consecutive year, this time with an illustration of Cheaper by the Dozen, industrious library assistants turned their attention to the club's other activities. For Stunt Night members donned animal costumes and enacted a parody of George Orwell's Animal Farm.

Attractive book displays on tables and bulletin boards heralded National Library Week in April. Colored paper "books," which appeared in the hall and library, served as backgrounds for illustrations of "The Art of Reading." Club members offered prizes for interested Freemanites who identified literary characters from sketches read over the public address system.

Besides working one period in the library each day, members attended regular monthly meetings. At the end of a year of service in the library, members received a small gold pin.

Officers for the year were Barbara Mannhardt, president; Agnes Brown, vice-president; Jennette Wright, secretary; and Faye Cole, treasurer. Mrs. Virginia Johnson served as advisor.

Service club's activities reveal creative talent

Out of the pages of Mad magazine stepped Professor Van Orbitmaker, portraying an absent-minded scientist. The satirical discussion of outer space was the Art Service Club's contribution to Stunt Night.

Earlier in the year, Homecoming had presented another challenge for the club to display its ability in creative art. Princess Jackie Deitrick rode amid a mass of glittering butterflies circling a field of yellow, pink, and aqua napkins.

Amidst the clamor of the alternate Wednesday afternoon meetings, the members of the Art Service Club created and arranged their materials for the bulletin boards next to the library. These bulletin boards demonstrated phases of school life or emphasized special weeks and holidays. Other activities encouraged good sportsmanship by displaying posters throughout the school. Preceding Christmas the members created holiday spirit with many decorations. Candy-striped carnations, red cardboard candles, and live holly all combined to make festive effects.

The officers this year, led by sponsor Miss Virginia Moseley, were Ann Scott Randle, president; Donna Robinson, vice-president; Ruth Carey secretary; and Corinne Langhorne, treasurer.

Active Y-Teens form third triangle at DSF

"Do you need a slave? If so, contact a Y-Teen member!" was the eye-catching message posted on the Y-Teen bulletin board to inform students of a unique service offered by both triangles. The girls sold slave bonds which entitled the holder to one hour's baby sitting, car washing, or dish washing by a Y-Teen member. Proceeds from the bonds went to support a YWCA foreign exchange student program.

A new "little sister" program began the year for Triangle I. At a welcoming tea each old member adopted a new member to help her become a part of the group and to explain to her the general purposes of Y-Teens. The girls directed some of their projects towards raising money for a scholarship fund to be awarded to a faculty-chosen senior girl. The club raised money by a pre-Christmas sale of Claxton fruit cakes as well as by monthly bake sales.

The holiday season found the service workers joining forces with the Key Club to present the annual Christmas party at the William Byrd Community Center. In February the girls assumed a weekly plan for doing volunteer work at the Home for Incurables.

In order to increase the number of girls eligible to join Y-Teens and to extend the field of service, a third triangle was formed at DSF this year. Representatives from Triangle I and II met to draft a constitution and to make plans for establishing the new triangle.

Earlier in the year, girls from both triangles attended the World Fellowship Service in Washington, D. C. After the service in the National Cathedral, they had lunch and spent several hours touring the city.

At one of the meetings, Triangle II girls enjoyed an unusual tape recording which presented Communistic values contrasted to American values. Later, the club invited Triangle I members to hear Thalhimers' Teen Consultant, DSF alumna, Miss Susie Williams. She advised the girls about proper make-up and beauty tips. Their trip to the Baptist Home for the Aged added to their service projects; Christmas caroling, and a tea in the spring to welcome new members concluded their year's work.

Mrs. Susan Lambiotte and Miss Josephine Hillsman advised Triangle I activities. Margaret Brawner served as president; Ann Gordon Jenkins, vice-president; Jackie Harris, secretary; Jackie Deitrick, treasurer; and Betty Beale, sergeant-at-arms.

Triangle II advisors, Miss Peggy Dulin and Mrs. Mary Lindquist, directed Y-Teens projects assisted by Judy Kenney, president; Jerry Howard, vice-president; Ellie Carroll Hamilton, secretary; Dorothy Daille Pritchard, treasurer; and Nancy Morris, sergeant-at-arms.

Members prod attendance to sport functions

PREPARING THE POPULAR "NEBBISH PROGRAMS" for basketball fans, Phyllis assists Bob in running the Gestetner.

"Castro and Regime," the topic chosen by speaker Vincent Cuervo, and "Communism," a tape recording, provided two of the unusual programs at the Wednesday night meetings of the Douglas Freeman Key Club.

In addition to regular meetings, Key Clubbers engaged in other activities and projects. They carried out traditions initiated during the club's four-year existence, which included acting as escorts for the Homecoming princesses, giving devotions at SCA assemblies, and working to improve the school grounds. At Christmas the boys, together with Y-Teens Triangle One, sang carols and played games with thirty-five small children at their annual party in the William Byrd Community Center. They also assisted in the March of Dimes drive.

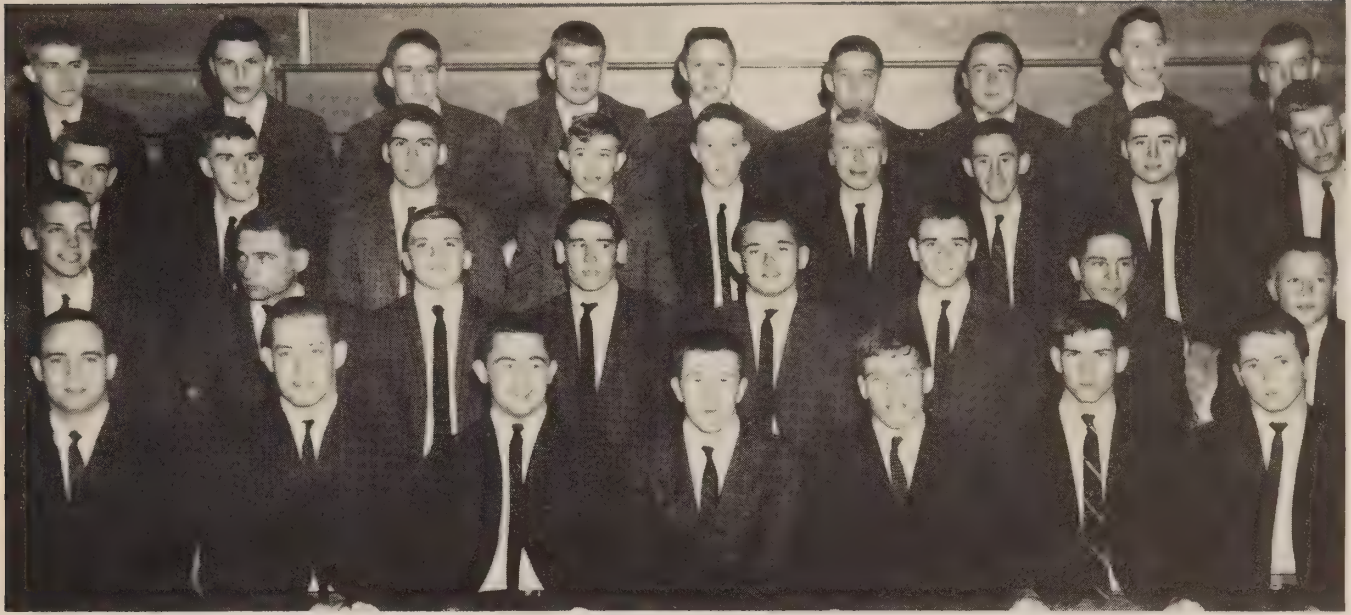

Through members' efforts, novelty basketball programs featuring the "Nebbishes" added interest for the fans. Attendance for out of town football games was made easier by posted routes, and Rebels who attended home games found the boys in their gray jackets operating the concession stand on the sidelines. Armed with ladders and brushes, agile club members peeled old green paint from the gym windows and applied a fresh coat. At the beginning of the year the boys bought number plates for the backs and arms of seats in the auditorium.

Officers for the past year were Tom Ranson, president; Bob Ackerly, vice-president; Bob Fleet, secretary; and Roger Walton, treasurer. Cathy Shipman was selected as Key Club Sweetheart. Serving as advisor was Mr. D. E. Baggett.

H-Y promotes school and community service

"Bring that tray here, Hi Fi," called the confused cafeteria assistant at the YMCA banquet. By taking on the role of waiters at a dinner given for Richmond businessmen, the Hi-Y fulfilled a part of their program of school and community service.

The Hi-Y began its fall program of service at Douglas Freeman with the sponsorship of a Thanksgiving assembly. They collected baskets of food bound for Sheltering Arms Hospital and then displayed them to the school during the annual program. At Christmas, the Hi-Y participated in the traditional "toys for tots" campaign for the Crippled Children's Hospital. The service club also supported fund raising drives for the March of Dimes and the Tuckahoe Rescue Squad.

During the year athletic members played basketball against other Hi-Y teams in the Richmond area and participated in inter-mural matches at DSF. In the Richmond YMCA League the club went through an undefeated season but lost to arch-rival TJ in the finals of the tournament. In order to help the Rebel Athletic Department, club members ushered, ran errands, and served as managers for the visiting teams during the Central District Group II tournament held at Douglas Freeman.

Mr. Fred Wells advised the activities of the Hi-Y, assisted by Phil Stone, president; John Thomas Fritzlen, vice-president; Bill Calliot, secretary; and Butch Land, treasurer.

Chorus provides vocal training for singers

At third period each day the back hall filled with melodious strains which sifted from the band room. Tunes from regular practice sessions of the Girls' Chorus entertained students bent over their classwork. To improve their voices and to receive training for the Glee Club, the girls met to blend their voices in a variety of musical selections.

Natural singing ability developed constantly under the guidance of Mr. Hunter Purdie, Girls' Chorus director. Robbie Melworth, elected as the only officer for the year, took over the task of distributing the music folders. The group's repertoire included a wide selection, which ranged from the American folk music of Negro spirituals and the show tunes of Rodgers and Hammerstein to the light classical melodies of Debussy.

Between songs the girls took the opportunity to learn more about the many facets of vocal training. Listening to recordings of the Walter Schumann Chorale, they observed its techniques on phrasing and tonal quality. The sounds of musical instruments became familiar through other records.

EAGER TO IMPROVE THEIR VOICES, Patsy Mason, Martha Murdoch and Betty Jo Hamner record an anthem on tape.

Downbeats serenade King Cole in Stunt Night

"Ole King Cole was a merry old soul," chorused the Downbeats, costumed in wigs and tights, as they announced the program of entertainment for Stunt Night. The nine courtiers serenaded King Cole with a medley of songs and introduced acts for his pleasure. Clad in their blue semi-full skirts and plaid vests, the group also demonstrated its ability in Junior Talent Night, singing an arrangement of Broadway show tunes.

The triple trio participated in several church activities during the year. They sang for a revival at Freewill Baptist Church and for a service at First Baptist Church. In addition to entertaining for an Eastern Star banquet and a Kiwanis luncheon, the Downbeats also visited the Home for Incurables to sing for the patients.

In rehearsal every Monday afternoon after school, the vocalists revised old songs and learned new ones to present at various functions. Making their first appearance in a pep rally, the girls sang familiar Rebel cheers to the tunes of popular music. School spirit increased as the Downbeats led the student body in singing the revised cheers.

At the end of the year girls interested in joining the group competed in the tryouts for positions vacated by graduating seniors. Selections of new members was based on quality of voice, ability to read music, and neatness of appearance.

Miss Dorothea Moore advised the Downbeats, assisted by Nancy Morris, president; Jerry Howard, secretary-treasurer; and Jerry Starke, reporter.

DSF carolers perform for radio listeners

BEFORE SINGING in an assembly, Millie Wood, Fran Dix and Betty Martin make last-minute adjustments to their robes.

Christmas carols wafted from radios tuned to station WMBG one December day; the voices belonged to DSF's Glee Club. The singers made a trip to the Broad-Grace Arcade to entertain the radio audience with their renditions of familiar carols and novel specialty numbers. Upon their return to school, carols floated into the open doors of classrooms as they serenaded Freemanites, busy with their work.

Members competed with other glee clubs at Manchester High School, where the Annual State Choral Festival took place. Weeks of daily practice and special rehearsals before and after school culminated in a rating of "excellent."

All State Chorus, held in February at Richmond Professional Institute, claimed nine Freemanites to participate in the choral group; attending were sopranos, Carol Mowels and Jeannette Wright; altos Nancy Morris and Pam Curtis; tenors Ken Dietz and Jay Hereford; basses Frank Sheffield, Edward Smith, and Charles Elliott.

May was the month in which two special functions appeared on the calendar. First was a "Night of Music" where Mr. Purdy's musical composition, "The Donkey," entertained a Freeman audience for the first time. Later, music students enjoyed a semi-formal dance, sponsored by the Music Boosters' Club.

Officers for the year were Jay Hereford, president; Jeri Lewis, vice-president; Diane Jackson, secretary-treasurer; Pam Curtis, librarian.

Musicians participate in Virginia's Band Day

On Friday afternoons, to the brisk beat of a marching song, students poured into the gymnasium for a pep rally. They scurried for seats by friends, and after all were settled, there was a moment of silence. Then, with the first note of the trumpet, the light beating of drums, and the nod of the director, the entire student body rose to their feet singing "I wish I was in the land of cotton." School spirit, filled with singing, clapping and cheering, swept through the gym as the band once again played "Dixie."

With the same spirit the DSF band traveled to Charlottesville in November to participate in the University of Virginia Band Day. Thirty state bands marched together at the half-time ceremonies of the UVA-Citadel game. In February seven band members represented DSF at the Central All-State Band Concert at Brookland Junior High School.

With Mr. Purdie as director, Mike Nestor served as president; Rodney Smith, vice-president; and Jana Privette, secretary-treasurer.

Managing editor Colburn addresses journalists

LEFTOVER COOKIES from a Quill and Scroll bake sale entice two hungry club members, Linda Basheer and Cathy Shipman.

The small gold emblems of the Quill and Scroll Society are worn "with a difference." Because much of the work done by Commentator and Historian staff members takes place behind closed doors, students are not aware of who gives the hours of effort to their publications. However, during the impressive tapping ceremonies, it is then that these journalists receive recognition. Later, when the pins arrive, they display the tangible emblems that signify membership in the honorary society.

In the Quill and Scroll, activities varied from a bake sale to a photography contest. Again this year, the group displayed award-winning snapshots from the Eastman Kodak High School Photo Contest. With entry blanks and pamphlets, club members encouraged DSF photographers to enter the competition.

A velvety black feather served as a scepter for Linda Leard as she represented the club in Homecoming.

In May the group sponsored the annual publications banquet and recognized other worthy journalists. Mr. John Colburn, managing editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, was guest speaker at the banquet.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Marian Breedon and Miss Jeanne Saunders, Cathy Shipman served as president and Mary Ann Seume as secretary-treasurer.

Ten printed inches! Journalism students labored long and hard to attain this necessary goal. They donned thinking caps and chewed erasers, activities which seemed to be indispensable in the writing of news articles and feature stories. Gradually, as their stories were printed, they came nearer and nearer to the magic mark which would make them eligible for staff positions. After reaching this target, they employed their writing skill in one last task—applications for their desired positions. The fledgling reporters then rose to the ranks of page editors and column writers for the Commentator.

This year, for the first time, the newspaper and yearbook joined forces in their subscription drive. At an assembly members of both publications portrayed two feuding families, the Tators and the Torians. Famous historical figures appeared on the stage, each one representing a member of one of the quarreling clans and each one a partner in an historic union. When the procession of characters ended, the feuding families crowded onto the stage where the climactic union took place.

After the excitement of a vigorous subscription drive, the staff settled down to the business of publishing a newspaper. No important school event or activity escaped coverage by the watchful reporters; no curious human interest stories were overlooked. In their quest for scoops, they conducted a poll of Freemanites to learn favorites in several different categories. Their findings ranged from favorite movie, Ben-Hur, to favorite comic strip, "Peanuts."

This year, as in the years before, the paper competed for awards with other publications across the country at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention. Staff members Anne Barden, Linda Leard, Tim Sheldon, and Tim O'Keefe, with advisor, Miss Shirley Ward, accompanied the first place prize-winning publication to New York. There they attended journalism classes at Columbia University and heard speakers from New York and West Point newspapers. After classes they filled their spare time with sight-seeing and popular Broadway plays.

Another activity that occupied the young journalists was the preparation of a skit for Stunt Night. The prize-winning entry, "The Night Before Christmas at DSF," portrayed Santa Claus distributing gifts to well-known school personalities.

The Cub Club, a subsidiary of the newspaper, continued its work of training sophomores for the staff. To keep the DSF directory up to date, they worked long hours after school. The results of their labors were the welcomed blue books containing names and addresses of classmates. Instead of turning out their regular April Fool's issue, Cubs undertook the task of publishing the sixth page of the April Commentator.

SIPA awards Historian a first Medalist rating

"What's your objective for your yearbook?" Delegates Jane Gilbert, George Burke, and Barbara Green found the answer to this and other questions in classes centered around the planning and preparation of a yearbook at the SIPA convention in Lexington, Virginia. Convention excitement reached its peak with the announcement of awards. Competing with publications from other Southern states, the 1960 Historian added SIPA's Medalist trophy to All-American honors from NSPA and the Medalist from CSPA.

Members of the Historian staff embarked on their undertaking during summer vacation. At the home of associate editor, Linda Basheer, they met to suggest ideas for the book's theme. The business staff, under the direction of manager Mary Ann Seume and ad editor Bob Fleet, played a necessary role in their acquisition of pictorial ads for the publication.

When school began, the staff contributed to discussions of theme and cover ideas. Writing and rewriting copy became less of a task with the welcomed assistance of Mrs. Mildred Harris and Mrs. Mary Eubank. Photographers Tom Thurston and Ray Saunders strolled through the halls before class and during lunch snapping pictures of unaware Freemanites. Gradually the theme materialized and the story of the year's events developed around it.

Teamwork emphasized in athletics

The sense of unity among Rebels carries into the gymnasium and onto the playing field where Rebel coaches stress the importance of teamwork rather than individual efforts. There are no star athletes; there is no individual glory. Instead, there is team cooperation and team spirit. Rebel fans share enthusiasm for good sportsmanship. As a result Douglas Freeman boasts a two-year possession of the symbolic sportsmanship trophy. The experience of voluntary participation in sports requires self-discipline and sacrifice, but Rebels feel that it is worth while. For the athlete there is a sense of accomplishment; for the entire student body there is the proud feeling of belonging.

Coaches initiate new 60-61 schedule changes

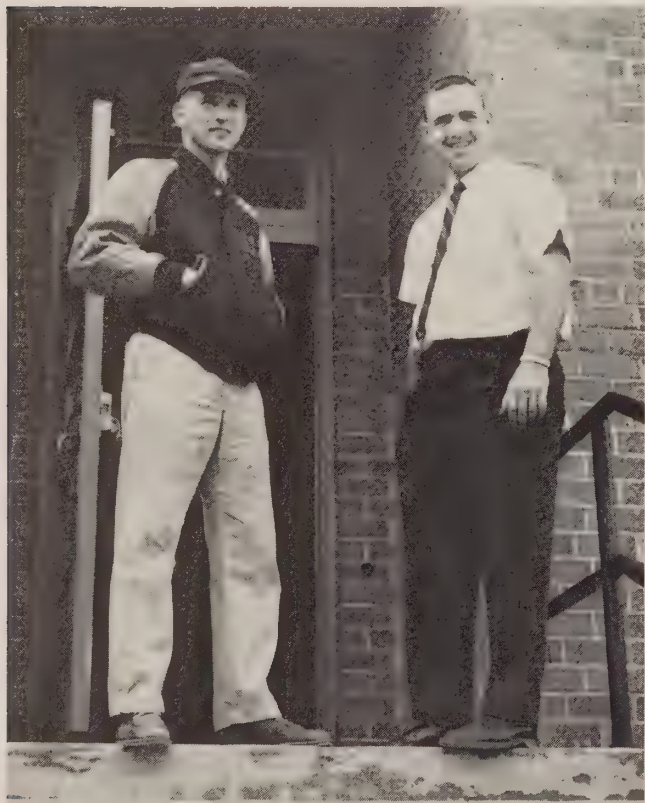

Entering its third year of Group I athletic participation, the DSF coaching staff forged ahead into an all new schedule of major sports contests. Slated a week earlier than usual, football initiated the new program with a revised ten-game season. October saw the inauguration of a new autumn sport into the DSF gymnasium as the girls' basketball team abandoned its usual winter season and began playing its games in the fall months. The boys' basketball squad reduced its number of contests from seventeen to fifteen, all of which were Central District encounters.

Following last year's successful distribution of their resources, the coaches once again split assignments among major sports. Athletics Director W. E. Long, in his sixth year at Douglas Freeman, piloted the football and track squads to winning seasons. Jon Masello coached the varsity cagers while Ray Long headed wrestling and varsity baseball. Fred Wells led the golf team while assisting Bill Long with the JV cagers. Completing the staff, Bill Clark, after returning from a one-year tenure at Tuckahoe Junior High School, directed the indoor track team and helped Bill Long with the spring track squad. Mr. J. D. Patton coached tennis.

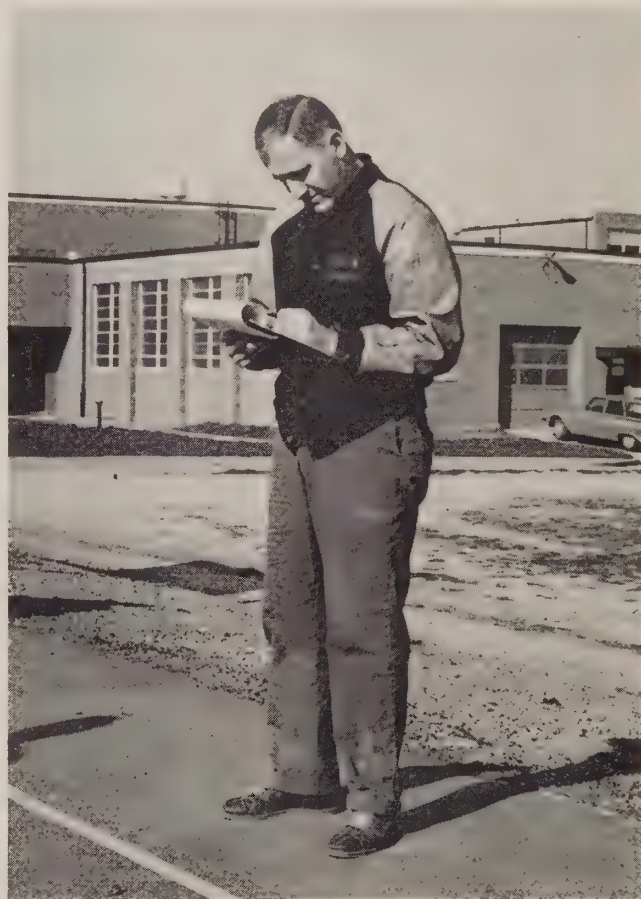

In order to study techniques for strengthening DSF athletic policies, Bill Long and Fred Wells made a week-long trip to Atlantic City, N. J. for a coaches clinic in March. Members of the staff have also made plans to attend an August clinic in Chicago.

"Silhouette in White" supplied the theme for the 1961 Gym Show in which approximately 300 students from the sophomore class participated. Massello and Ray Long teamed with girl physical education teachers, Peggy Dulin and Florence Lawrence, to direct the show. Featured in the performance were exercise drills, apparatus demonstrations, tumbling, human pyramid building, and dancing.

In an effort to encourage interest in DSF athletics, the staff posted in the main hall newspaper clippings, schedules, and records of Rebel teams.

Rebel gridgers compile best Group I record

Against a schedule of ten tough opponents, the 1960 gridgers compiled Freeman's most successful record in its short Group I history. Led by co-captains Tom Ranson and Bucky Pritchard, the Rebels finished fourth in the Central District with a 7-3 overall record.

In recognition of their outstanding achievements, tackle Butch Land and guard Jay Cox were awarded positions on the All-Central District second team. The All-Metro squad named fullback Tom Ranson to the first team. Land and Cox to the second team, and center Larry Williams and halfback Frank Bowman to the third unit.

ALBEMARLE SEPTEMBER 16 24-6

Opening the season a week earlier than the previous year, the big Gray exploded after a slow start with two fourth period touchdowns to stop the speed-latent Albemarle squad. Alternating halfbacks Frank Bowman, John Bowden, and Bucky Pritchard teamed with fullback Tom Ranson to carry the brunt of the offense, which thrived on ball control and extended drives.

MANCHESTER SEPTEMBER 24 7-6

Manchester scored on the third play of the game by a 60-yard pass which caught the Rebel defensive backfield completely off guard. Freeman's hopes of avenging their 32-0 loss at the hands of the Lancers last year seemed slim until guard Jay Cox recovered a fumble on the Manchester 45 as the first quarter ended. On the strength of Bowman's sweeps around left end and Ranson's power over center, the Rebels scored the tying TD on a one yard plunge by the hefty fullback. Pritchard's extra point placement provided the margin of victory.

HERMITAGE SEPTEMBER 30 0-33

In an early season showdown with their traditional rival, Douglas Freeman fell in a disappointing effort, 33-0. The Panther line opened gaping holes for the Hermitage backs, who scored easily through the air as well as on the ground. The Rebels' only threat of the evening ended on the Panther 3 after a 96-yard march.

THOMAS JEFFERSON OCTOBER 7 13-6

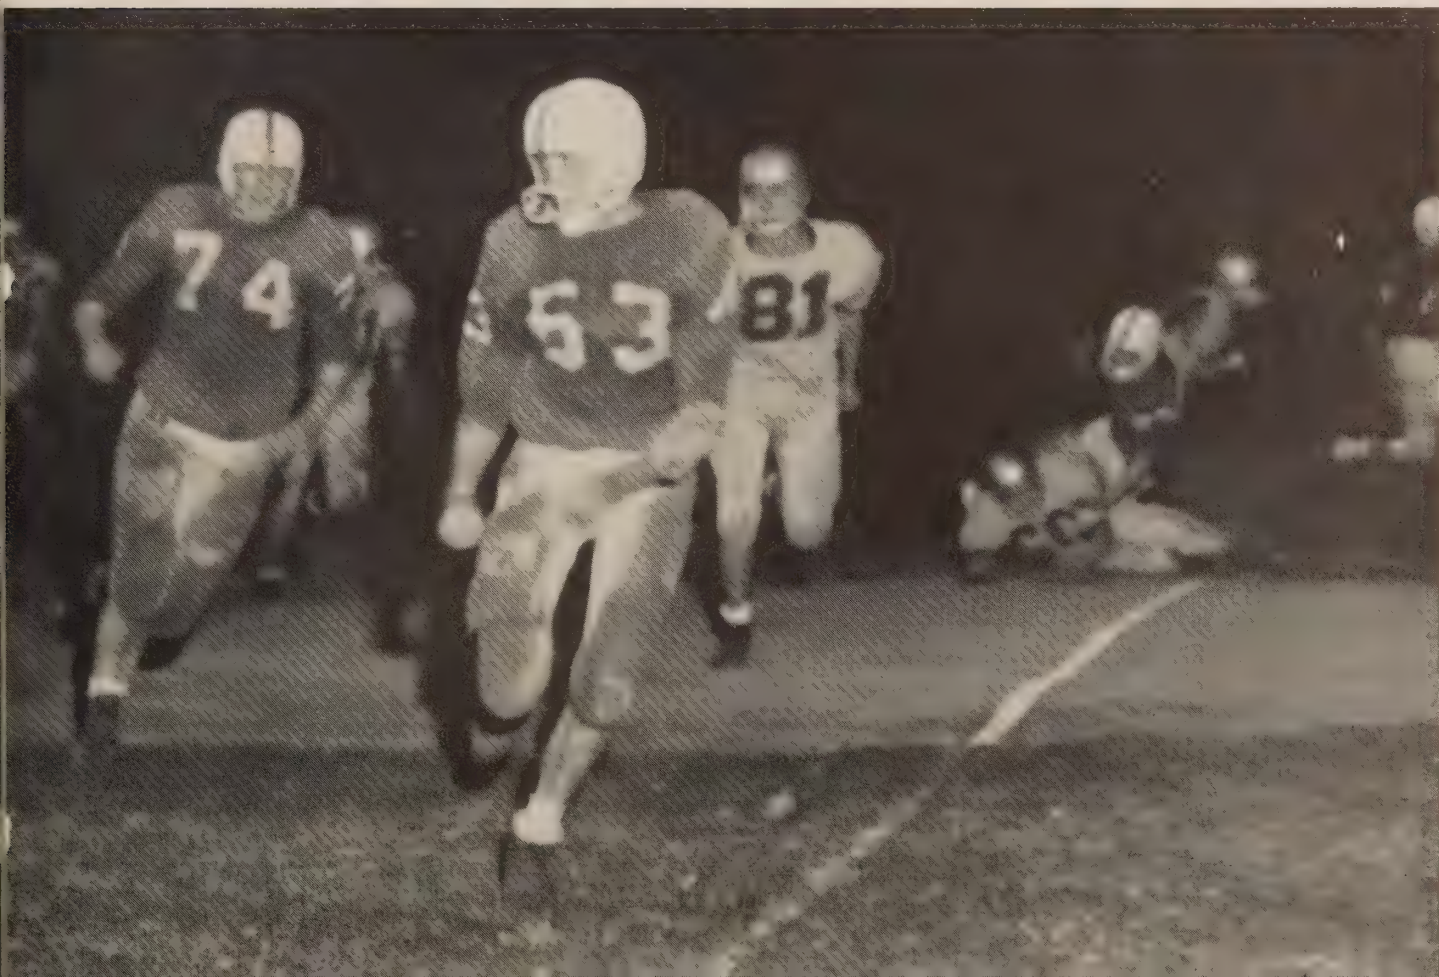

Before an enthusiastic crowd of 4,000 at Parker Field, Tom Ranson led a come-from-behind victory over favored Tee Jay. Following a scoreless first half, the Presidents capitalized on a 52-yard third quarter drive; Ranson returned the ensuing kickoff to the Jeff 36. Moments later Pritchard plunged off tackle for two yards and the score. Midway in the fourth period the determined Rebels broke the 6-6 deadlock as Ranson thundered off the right side for 42 yards.

GEORGE WYTHE OCTOBER 14 26-14

Douglas Freeman again used a determined come-from-behind effort along with aggressive ball control to stop an inspired GW team in the Rebels' Homecoming game. DSF opened the scoring after receiving the kick-off as Bowman bulled over from the two. The Rebels, after twice relinquishing the lead, broke the game open with a touchdown late in the third period. A time consuming drive, sparked by David Fahy's 32-yard quarterback roll-out as the game ended, widened the Rebel margin of victory.

JOHN MARSHALL OCTOBER 28 7-0

Freeman notched its fifth victory in a closely contested game with underdog John Marshall. It was the best effort of the season for the Justices, who held off the Rebel offense until the third quarter when Pritchard twisted 17 yards through the mud for the lone tally of the night. Quarterback Fahy led the only other DSF threat of the game with a series of sweeping roll-outs which brought the Rebels within two yards of a score.

THOMAS DALE NOVEMBER 4 28-13

The dethroners of previously undefeated Petersburg presented a major threat to the Rebel's four-game winning streak. The aggressive Blue and Gray offense, however, quickly dispensed with the Dales in a scoring spree which gave Freeman two TD's in the first four minutes of play and a 21-6 lead at half-time. Pritchard, who led the Rebel attack, blasted out 100 yards in 14 carries before leaving the game with a thigh contusion.

the season, DSF prepared to face a highly respected Lane squad. The Rebels capitalized on two first period fumbles to gain a quick 14-0 lead. The Knights momentarily struck back but were quickly despirited when a Larry Williams block enabled Jack Frazee to sneak up the middle for 35 yards and the score. Frazee later supplied an assurance TD on a one-yard QB sneak.

HIGHLAND SPRINGS NOVEMBER 18 12-20

Five thousand fans gathered in a crisp November setting to watch the Rebels clash with undefeated Highland Springs at Parker Field. The underdog Rebs took the opening kickoff and drove easily for the first tally, climaxed by a fourth down Bowman touchdown pass to end Pete Tosh. The Springers hit the impregnable Blue and Gray inner wall for twelve minutes and then turned to the flanks to slash out two second quarter touchdowns. Highland Springs struck again in the third period, and the Rebs retaliated but failed to overcome the deficit.

PETERSBURG NOVEMBER 23 19-21

The Rebels entered muddy Cameron Field to close their season against the Maroon Wave. After quickly notching the first score, the spiritless Blue and Gray disintegrated and allowed the famed Earl Hawkins to run their flanks at will. Revitalized at halftime, which had DSF down 14-6, the Big Gray overcame the deficit on two extended drives. Petersburg's Buddy Fisher bulled over for the winning TD as the game ended.

Underclassmen bolster varsity cagers' attack

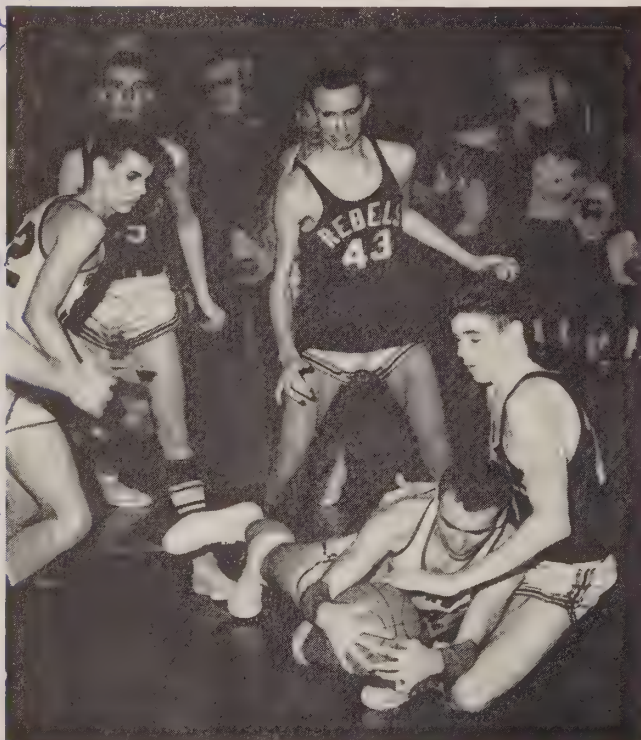

Without a single returning letterman from the 1959-60 ball club, the DSF varsity cagers suffered their second straight losing season. The squad captured three victories out of fifteen contests in their third year of Group I competition.

The inexperienced Rebel squad opened the season against fast-breaking Thomas Jefferson before a packed house at the DSF gymnasium. Juniors Bob Ackerly and 6'3" Frank Duss paced the Rebs' gallant bid to upset the Beltliners. Freeman's most spirited effort of the year fell short as Bobby Duke stuffed in 43 points in leading Tee Jay to a 85-57 triumph. By notching a victory over Thomas Dale in their second pre-Christmas game, the Rebels evened their ledger at 1-1.

Returning from the holiday inactivity, the cagers dropped seven straight contests before nipping George Wythe 41-40 in overtime. After amassing a 9-point first-half margin, the Rebs fell apart in the third period but hung on as Bob Ackerly popped in a 40-foot set shot as the buzzer sounded ending the regulation time. Don Rawlings' foul shot in the overtime clinched the Rebels' second victory. After the Wythe triumph, determination and enthusiasm overcame the depressed squad, which played heads-up, aggressive ball throughout the remainder of the season.

FRANK BOWMAN HALTS HIS DOWNCOURT PROGRESS as he is confronted by jeering David Blake (15) of Thomas Dale.

Following losses in fiercely contested battles with John Marshall and Manchester, the Rebels smashed Thomas Dale for the second time. The hungry Rebs moved on to George Wythe for the final game of the year; the season's success hung on the outcome. A victory in this key contest would enable DSF to finish eighth in the District and gain a berth in the post-season tournament. Behind the rebounding of sophomore Tom Holloway and the scoring of 5'8" Don Rawlings and Frank Duss, the Rebels grabbed a 27-24 half-time lead which they stretched to nine points at the three-quarter mark. The cagers collapsed in the final stanza, scoring only five points, and fell to the rallying Bulldogs, 49-47.

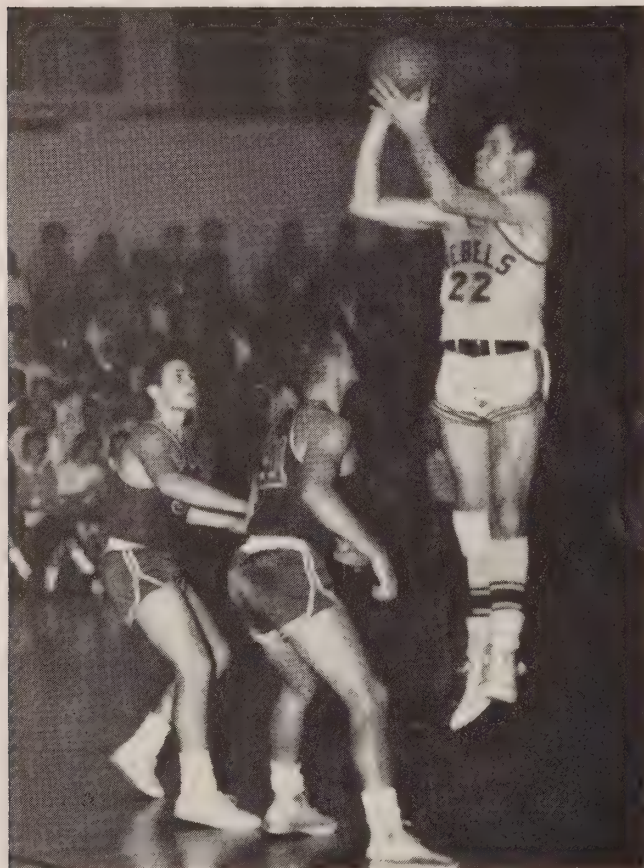

Throughout the season, the Rebels were plagued by a lack of a definite starting five. As Coach Massello shuffled his players, the younger cagers eventually emerged as the team's strength. A lack of a consistent scoring threat, however, continued to hamper the effectiveness of the varsity squad.

Captain Don Rawlings, master of a deadly lunging jump shot, and junior Frank Duss led the attack which averaged 44.7 points a game. Rawlings, who started slowly because of a thumb injury, finished the season in a flurry, scoring in double figures in the last seven games and ending the year with an average of 9.43 points per contest. Six-foot five-inch center Lindley Smith teamed with Tom Holloway to dominate the team's rebounding. Holloway, a 6'4" Tuckahoe Junior High School product, showed tremendous poise and desire in his first year in a DSF uniform. Hustling juniors Willie Maples and Frank Bowman also saw regular action. Bill Jones, Jack Frazee, Bob Ackerly, Richard Jainchell, and Roger Walton gained valuable experience in preparation for next season and teamed with seniors Steve Greenburg, Stan Hughes, and Tom Dew to add depth to the squad.

High-scoring JV cagers take eight victories

From a turnout of fifty-five candidates, twenty boys, composing four squads, were chosen for Douglas Freeman's 1961 Junior Varsity basketball team. In their season's opener, Coach Bill Long's junior cagers triumphed over Thomas Jefferson in a victory which initiated an 8-7 record and another winning season.

Following their 38-30 win over the Jeffs, the hard-driving Rebs mauled Thomas Dale 38-15 and then blew a 15-point lead to drop a 42-44 decision to Petersburg. Manchester, John Marshall, and George Wythe fell before the Rebel attack, while Hermitage, Highland Springs, and Lane topped the spirited squad.

The high-scoring Rebels placed a man in double figures in all of their contests and compiled a remarkable 46½-point scoring average.

6'3" center Don Plageman captured honors in both the scoring and rebounding columns with 116 points and 139 rebounds. Guard Craig Lea tallied 109 points, followed by forwards Jim Tolbert and Bob Bradley scoring 85 points and 83 points respectively.

Good overall balance was the key to many of the Rebels' victories. The first three squads were interchangeable and saw equal action. Guards Dan Massie, Chuck Fleet, Ed Pate, and forwards Craig Smith and Howard Walker completed the continually rotating first string quintet, while Rick Irby, George Stevenson, Zeke King, Wade Walsh, Ed Beck, and Chuck Jacobs joined the roster of substitutes.

Girl hoopsters inaugurate autumn schedule

Weakened by the return of only one of last year's regular starters, the 1960 girls' varsity basketball team notched victories in two contests against a schedule of twelve opponents. After dropping their opening games, the Rebelette cagers squeezed by Varina 25-24 before downing an outstanding Highland Springs squad. The girl cagers were unable to follow up these early-season triumphs and ended the season with eight straight defeats.

Offensively, the Rebelettes were led by high-scoring Betsy Garber, who sported a 9-point-per-game average. Betsy, a junior up from the JV squad for the first year, displayed impressive skill and polish with her uncanny accuracy from the floor. Doris Burnette produced valuable points in the early season encounters, scoring 17 points in the Varina and Highland Springs games and closing the year with a 8.2-point average. Three-year veteran Cynthia Bothwell sparked the girl cagers on the defensive half of the court.

To effect better scheduling with the boys' basketball team in the use of the gym, the Rebelettes decided to play their games in the fall months. Head coach Peggy Dulin, utilizing this opportunity for additional practice sessions, spent long hours working the girls on ball handling and fundamental shooting skills.

In gaining experience and confidence for later years, the '60 junior varsity six compiled a 2-4 ledger.

Freeman grapplers continue area domination

For the fifth consecutive year the DSF wrestling team produced a winning record and captured its fifth straight Metropolitan League title. In compiling a 5-4 ledger, the 1961 grapplers posted two victories over West End rival St. Christopher's and single match wins over Woodberry Forest, Prince George, and Roanoke's Jefferson Senior. Under the guidance of Ray Long, who has coached the squad for the last five years, the Rebels successfully blended hard work, determined mental attitude, and a strong feeling of l'esprit de corps to meet the challenge of their rough nine-match schedule.

The grapplers opened the season with losses to highly respected Wakefield of Arlington and to the Warwick Freestaters before topping Jefferson Senior, 33-23, during a two-night stand at Roanoke. The Rebels suffered their third loss in a 29-17 match with William Fleming in the second half of their stay at the home of the two Western District powers. The matmen quickly recovered from these early season setbacks by winning four of their next five matches.

After the final match victory over St. Christopher's, the Blue and Gray traveled to Princess Anne High School in Norfolk for the State Tournament. On the strength of Stuart Clough's first place in the 123-pound class, Tommy Chapman's second in the 136 class, and Wilburn Hatcher's third in the 106 class, the Rebels were able to compile 31 points for eighth place. Clough, whose first in the State gave Freeman its first Virginia championship, served as co-captain with Phil Stone.

With experienced standouts Penn Lemmonds, Davy Street, Wilburn Hatcher, and John Graham returning, the Rebels have the material necessary to maintain their area domination during the 1962 campaign.

BUCKY PRITCHARD hurdles his way to qualification for the finals of the 180 yard lows in the District Meet.

In extending its victory streak to twenty-two consecutive dual meets, the 1960 Douglas Freeman track team won its first Central District championship and regained the Henrico County crown. The small but beautifully balanced Rebel squad, under the leadership of co-captains Bob Duggan and Bucky Pritchard, set six school records and finished seventh in the Virginia State Meet.

Depth and balance were the key words in Douglas Freeman's success. With Jim Reid and Duff Poage in the high jump, Bill Jones, Tom Ranson, and Butch Land in the weights, Ed Sala and David Fahy in the 440, and Bob Duggan, Jack Frazee, and Ben Blanton in the distances, the Rebels were unmatched in dual-meet competition.

In the face of unfavorable pre-season predictions, the Rebels in their first encounter of the spring quickly established themselves as a district power by driving past highly rated Hopewell $70\frac{1}{2}$ - $42\frac{1}{2}$. Following victories over Petersburg and John Marshall by overwhelming scores, the Rebels finished a mediocre ninth in the annual Tidewater Invitational Meet. From this showing it was predicted by most area experts that the Rebels would have little success in anything but dual meets. The following Saturday, the underdog Rebels upset both local newspapers and the Hermitage Panthers by amassing 73 points to win the Henrico meet.

After the county spectacle, the DSF track team handily stopped Thomas Dale, Highland Springs, and Albemarle in preparation for the Central District Meet. Once again, the favored Panthers fell to the determined Rebels, as did powerful Thomas Jefferson and Hopewell. The margin of victory might have been greater in this meet if the mile relay team had not been disqualified in the final event of the afternoon.

Senior Bob Duggan was a consistent victor for the Rebels in the half mile. His first place in the State Meet marked the second year in a row that Freeman has produced a state champion.

GATHERING HIS SINUOUS LIMBS into a final mid-air surge of power, Duff Poage leaps to first place against Petersburg.

A STRAINING SAINT scampers down the base line as catcher Tommy Grant fields a bunt and relays it to Bruce Henry (5) covering first base. Action takes place during the Rebs' second loss to the Saints.

The 1960 glovemen, despite a return of seven lettermen, struggled through their second losing season.

In their initial encounter, the Rebs surprised an over-rated Hopewell opponent before dropping their first of six one-run decisions. A week later at Hermitage the glovemen again lost a frustrating deadlock by one run. After a sound trouncing at the hands of rampaging Manchester, the revamped Rebels attempted a reverse decision on highly ranked John Marshall, but the Justices recovered and gave the Rebs their third one-run loss.

Throughout the season the Rebel nine captured early leads only to have their victory hopes upset by rallying opponents. The dogged Blue and Gray bowed to the district powers, Highland Springs, Hermitage, and Manchester, in close contests but failed to muster enough force to defeat weaker opponents.

Sadly grouped hits hampered the Rebel offense although the timberswingers actually outhit many of their opponents. The outstanding pitching performance of Jim Massie, coupled with individual batting performances of Tommy Grant, George Matuck, and John Campbell, placed the Rebels as a threat to every team in the district. Massie compiled the best earned run average, striking out twelve batters in the second loss to Manchester, while Grant led the hitting column with a .380 batting average. He was followed by Matuck, batting .333, and Campbell, batting .303.

Besides continuing their usual skits during pep rallies this year, the cheerers began a new tradition of early morning rallies on the day of every football and basketball game.

Again the Rebelettes reached the semifinals of the annual Thalhimers cheer rally but were defeated by a peppy George Wythe squad.

In February the cheering squad took their customary ski trip to Davis, West Virginia, where heavy snow once again hindered transportation. This year, however, the cheerers managed to arrive home in time for Monday classes.

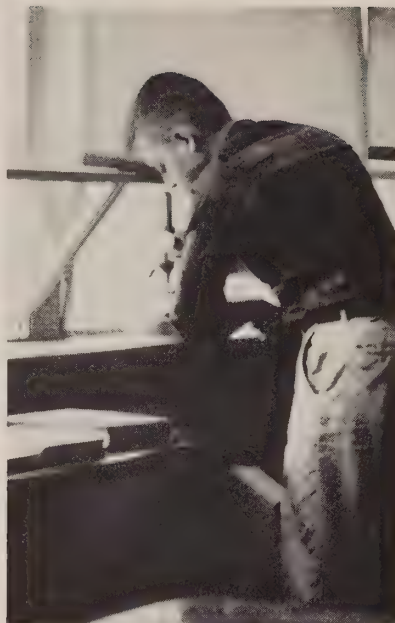

Although DSF fans were not on hand to acknowledge it, the Rebels once again copped the WLEE sportsmanship trophy, presented at the Central District basketball tournament. Contributing to this award, the Rebelettes diligently endorsed and publicized good sportsmanship during basketball games and pep rallies.

In their final activity of the year, juniors on the squad attended the first annual Virginia Cheer Clinic at Huguenot High School. There Mr. Bob Shields, an official National Cheerleaders Association instructor, conducted courses on cheering techniques, crowd psychology, and new cheers.

College prelude sets the tone of DSF classrooms

In the classroom at Douglas Freeman there is freedom of expression. There is the feeling of having one's opinions respected whether they be pro or con. This encouragement, so strong an element in the school's personality, prompts Rebels to continue their education past the level of a high school diploma. Among area schools, Douglas Freeman contributes the highest percentage of graduates to college-bound students. Douglas Freeman and its faculty offer opportunities for learning; Rebels have seized these opportunities and converted them into benefits for themselves and their school.

MR. W. HOWARD MEARS, Principal

Principal shares building interest with students

The corps of "sidewalk superintendents" had a distinguished member this year. Joining the ranks of those students in adjacent classrooms who have faithfully watched the progress of work on the new building was Mr. W. Howard Mears. With the coming of warmer weather, spring-feverish Freemanites, gazing lazily out open windows, grew used to seeing DSF's principal talking to the foreman or noting the latest developments on the addition which will soon become a functioning part of Douglas Freeman.

As the director of administration at DSF, Mr. Mears, although no longer a teacher, often appeared in classrooms as an observer.

While Mr. Mears attended a principals' convention in Detroit in February, Mr. D. E. Baggett added new responsibilities to those of assistant principal.

Aside from his disciplinary duties, Mr. Baggett acted as liaison between student, office and teacher. The former science teacher, who worked at a chemical firm during the summer, also kept in touch with his earlier interest by acting as head of the Science Department.

For juniors and seniors, a series of classes conducted by guidance director Miss Faye Hill answered questions about college, careers and school life. The optional course was offered in five study-hall sessions.

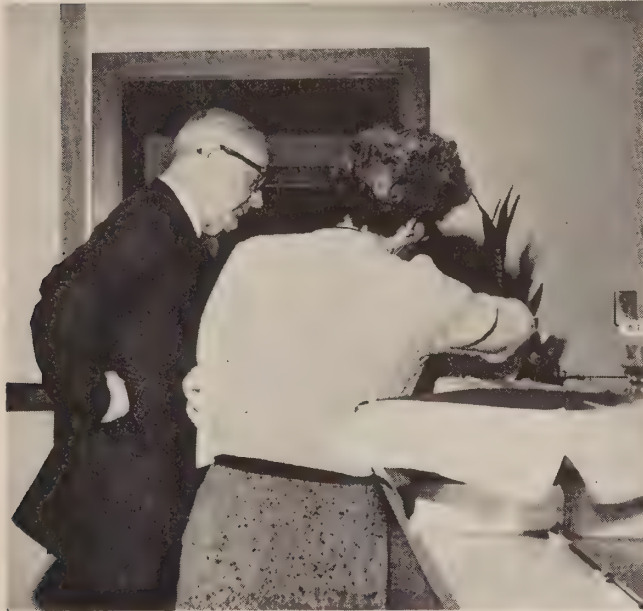

Bewildered sophomores, adjusting to high school, sought help from guidance counselor Miss Glasselle Adams, who advised the lowerclassmen.

Transcripts bring college-bound Rebels to office

MRS. JEANNE O'KEEFE performs a frequent task as she gives sophomore Helen Jo Silver the old standby, an aspirin and water.

Anxious seniors made many trips to the office; each day brought another inquiry as impatient upperclassmen waited to hear from colleges. Some even wondered if their transcripts had been lost. Mrs. Virginia Saunders, secretary, reassured the frenzied students and quietly continued her work. Mailing a letter seemed a simple thing, but only the thoughtful person realized the number of hours that were spent preparing and sending the written transcripts for college-bound Rebels. Besides typing and performing the usual secretarial practices, Mrs. Saunders managed to keep DSF blooming with decorative flower arrangements. No formal occasion was complete without an expressive composition of blossoms.

As Secretary to the Principal, Mrs. Marguerite Jones kept busy with characteristic duties. While not assisting Mr. Mears, she balanced columns of figures and handled school finances.

Sophomores soon became acquainted with Mrs. Jeanne O'Keefe, nurse, as they developed the usual bruises and blisters from work on physical education equipment. Swinging from the ropes and high bar proved exciting but painful, and the short distance across the hall from the gym to the clinic became a frequently traveled path. A dab of burning antiseptic sent the acrobats on their way ready for another feat of skill. To help Mrs. O'Keefe and to gain experience, Medical Arts Club members acted as assistants during their study halls. Aside from an occasional headache or upset stomach, there were no serious accidents or epidemics.

Guessing game highlights National Library Week

"Who is Mr. Macawber?" Recognizing him as a character from David Copperfield, DSF students hurriedly jotted down the author and title on everything from homework to grocery lists and rushed to the library to submit their entries. Every morning during the week of April 17-21, Freemanites had a chance to test their booklore by identifying this and other famous literary characters and quotations. Winners of the daily quizzes chose their prizes from a varied selection of paperback books. The contest was only one of the activities sponsored by the library to promote National Library Week. An award of five dollars offered to the writer of the best essay on "Why I Like to Read," a poll taken in English classes of the "Top Ten" books, and attractive bulletin board displays spotlighting the emphasis on reading rounded out the program.

As a steel and concrete framework was becoming a new school building outside, inside the DSF library was also expanding by adding 500 new volumes and increasing its range of periodicals to include such magazines as Vital Speeches and Business Week, which proved helpful to government and business students.

For the second year, Senior Day in the library acquainted seniors with material supplementary to the English literature and history courses. After a brief talk, in which head librarian Mrs. Virginia Johnson pointed out helpful library facilities, students were free to browse among tables holding colorful displays, which included samples from each section in the Dewey Decimal System.

Honors classes stress freedom of expression

WASHINGTON IRVING'S OWN WORDS are the starting point for Carolyn Hitt and Bob Ackerly in their study of the author.

This was a year of talk and back-talk of world compassing extent, from the critical United Nations exchanges of Henry Cabot Lodge and Nikita Krushchev to the spirited TV debates between Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy. Spoken ideas also filled English classrooms at DSF where teachers encouraged students to participate more actively in oral work. Honors classes offered pupils increased opportunities for intensive study on subjects of their own choice through research papers, special projects, and oral reports.

With this freedom of expression, students unleashed their creativity and devised interesting and unusual presentations, complementary to their more conventional classwork. Sophomore English students added to their survey of Julius Caesar by staging a fashion show with stylish variations of Roman togas. Silas Marner found himself surrounded once again by his Raveloe friends when he appeared as a guest on the Freemanite version of "This Is Your Life." The prevailing independent thought and action was evident in the increased enthusiasm with which pupils tackled assignments with ingenuity and imagination. In a senior literature project, dolls, in pairs, demonstrated Jane Austen's use of revealing dialogue in her novels. "Speaking" with pre-taped English accents, the petite puppets gave a critical exposé of some of the absurdities of the prim early eighteenth century society in which they "lived."

With this stress on talking, the tape recorder was the most used and essential instrument in room 200. The stream of students that came to tape memory lines, outstanding reports and forensic speeches flowed constantly in and out. More and more, it became a resource room for students and teachers. Much needed and hoped for files and cabinets held illustrative materials, records and displays. Teachers welcomed the availability of an office and conference room in which they could meet and talk over classroom activities.

A frantic search for Bacon (Sir Francis) caused the arrival at Douglas Freeman of Richmond News Leader feature writer, Guy Friddell to be somewhat hectic. Rushing into the library, he watched with delighted relief as librarian Mrs. Johnson calmly found the needed book, which Mr. Friddell used later in a speech made before Miss Shirley Ward's journalism class. Mr. Joseph Nettles, public relations director and alumni secretary of the University of Richmond, later spoke to the apprentice reporters on the news story.

Bombast and buffoonery were two of the ingredients that made the production "Alice in Wonderland" a delightful success. Presented by the drama class under the guidance of Miss Marlise Bok, drama instructor, the adventures of Judy Royal as the golden haired Alice charmed the audience of the "Night of One-Act Plays." In the classroom, dramatics students studied the development of the stage from Greek masque to Broadway musical.

A speech on "Why I Want to be a Minister" received the distinction of capturing for Douglas Freeman the only first place in this year's annual Forensics competition. Senior Paul Ransford, one of two Rebel representatives for Public Speaking, spoke on this subject before a varied panel of judges. Anne Barden, Sammie Sue Wade, Jim Seymore, Ned Dunn and Cullen Johnson were the other members of the Forensic team who added four second places to the score.

Bones, blocks illustrate geometric principles

MOVEMENT AND COLOR of wooden angles, constructed by a student, aid John Easter's demonstration of a geometric principle.

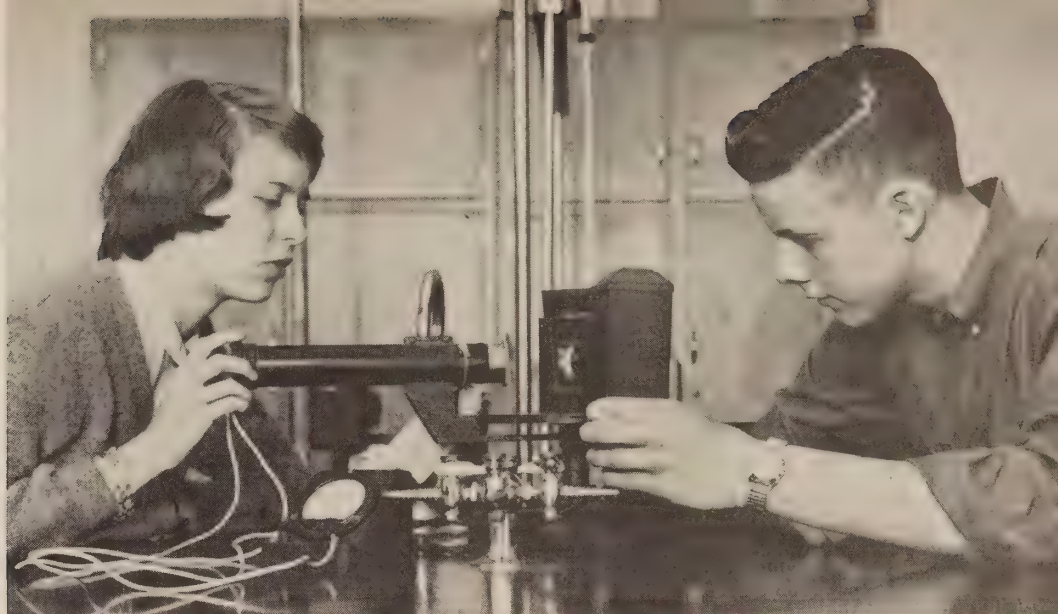

Napier's Bones seemed a strange thing to mention in math class. When Mrs. Jennette Hardin spoke of bones, biology and a chalky white skeleton immediately came to the students' minds. As the discussion progressed, Napier's remains appeared in an unimagined form. Man's first successful attempt to multiply by machine gained its name from the ivory or bones used by Napier in construction. With wooden bars and painted Roman numerals, James Davidson completed a model of the computer for class demonstration.

Charts, posters and three-dimensional figures appeared in geometric studies. Theorems from both plane and solid geometry took practical form as illustrative projects. From blocks of wood and a can of black paint, junior Ray Saunders produced four planes. After assembling the planes in a prescribed manner, Ray proved that two dihedral angles were equal. Ralph Faulhaber used rainbow colors in a pyramid with a removable point to give classes a better mental picture of a frustum.

To encourage math as a career, departmental teachers distributed a booklet, published by the National Academy of Science, entitled "Careers in Mathematics." Through biographies of eight young mathematicians, the text described the opportunities in the field.

For the first time, homogeneous grouping determined class membership. The honors courses, already used in English and history, became a part of the curriculum. Group placement depended on SCAT and STEP test scores, class performance, and teacher recommendation. Emphasizing the importance of outside study and research, the department recognized the questioning scholar.

Physics students travel, study Space Age

"Phoom!" As a jet flew overhead, DSF physics students on a visit to Langley Air Field clapped their hands to their ears to muffle the thundering roar. Abandoning slide rules and electron charts, interested class members, chaperoned by science instructor, Mr. Claiborne Leonard, traveled to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Research Center where they viewed several films on nuclear physics.

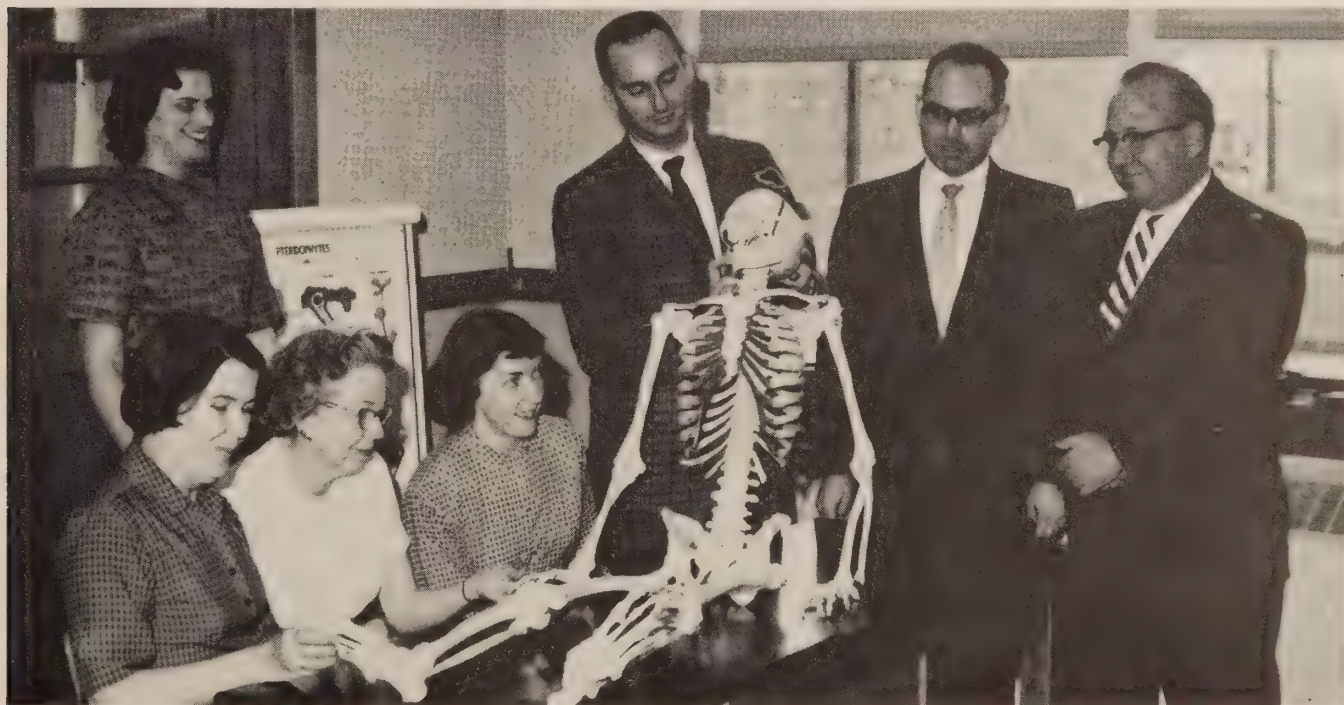

While inaugurating physical science, a general lab course, the department was already busy making plans to add still another subject. Next year those preparing for an engineering or medical career may enroll in a third semester advanced chemistry and physics class.

Climaxing the year's work, pupils made projects which they entered in the annual spring Science Fair. Sophomore Charles Jones of the Biology Club captured first place in the physics division with his solar heating unit.

Mock murder trial teaches court procedure

POLITICAL PARTIES and promises interest classroom debaters Judy Sutherland, Jim Seymore and Anne Barden. On stage, Jim and Al Byrne continue the controversy over election platforms.

"Will Miss Lizzie Sue Pinkleimperton please take the stand?" With a swish of her skirts, a controversial star witness arrived to testify in the murder trial of Ben Blanton, Jr. The mock court was one of the aids used in Miss Ada Land's fourth period government class to illustrate legal procedure.

County Government Day in March called eight Freemanites to fill important positions. Jim Seymore represented Tuckahoe District on the Board of Supervisors, Dave Fahy was elected County Manager, and Bucky Pritchard was chairman of the school board. Al Byrne, Cathy Shipman, Don Rawlings, Margaret Brawner, and Bob Fleet completed DSF's roster of county officials.

Two teams of government students discussed the 1961 presidential candidates before an audience of Y-Teen members. Al Byrne and David Fahy rivaled the Nixon-Kennedy "Great Debates" with the vehement support of their respective parties.

Visual aids proved important in instructing classes. Representatives of the Virginia Electric and Power Company presented the film, "Encroaching Socialism," to government students.

Mr. Claude C. Swaim, history teacher, introduced a discussion type book report which necessitated thorough coverage of parallel reading assignments. Other teachers attempted to convert their students into spellers by taking words from the history text's vocabulary.

With a year of history behind them, energetic students found interest in the new English history class. The course traced the growth of England from its beginning as an isolated isle to its position as a world power.

Language Department emphasizes speaking

Foreign sounds and the unfamiliar voice of una profressora invaded the hall each Friday. A glimpse of the weekly visitor proved impossible, for his instructive speech came from a prepared tape used in the Spanish classes. As part of the Language Department emphasis, this project encouraged the actual speaking and understanding of the modern languages. Through speech, the languages became more than typewritten words; they became communication. Discussions and skits in French, Spanish or German replaced the more traditional classroom activities.

From Van Gogh to Winnie-the-Pooh, class studies varied in context. In third and fourth year French, color slides of the great masters offered a complete art program. Winnie Ille Pu, the well known literary bear, appeared in Latin translation, while German students read The Student Prince. Selected Spanish Short Stories gave students a better understanding of the nineteenth century classics in Spain. Le Grand Meaulnes by Alain-Fournier, one of the five favorite novels of high school students in France, found receptive readers in French III.

March brought Language Emphasis Week amid a flurry of preparation. Each language group prepared posters, bulletin boards, menus, and skits for the assembly. French students brought the short story, "La Dernière Classe," to the stage, while German classes enacted Wilhelm Tell. The fourth year Spanish class presented El Canto de Mio Cid in 16th century Spanish, and even Cicero addressed Roman senators.

Melodies and mobiles encourage imagination

Flying chimneys and bobbing kangaroos moved about the art room as a gentle breeze stirred. In the window a smiling dinosaur and floppy-eared dog waited for attention. Art students found no alarm in the strange sights, for they had created the three-dimensional pictures. Thin wires kept the mobiles aloft while paper mâché gave the prehistoric monster his grin. Classes worked with the usual charcoal, oils and water colors but supplemented these with cereal, macaroni and other household items. Miniature houses or furnished rooms resulted from the study of architecture and interior home decoration.

With a twist of the radio dial, DSF voices came into homes at Christmastime. Station WMBG featured the Glee Club in a community sing at the Broad-Grace Arcade. Both the Girls' Chorus and the mixed Glee Club brought songs to the hearts of rebels in assemblies and school functions. Dressed in blue and grey, the band continued to play at football games and to march in parades. Their musical pep contributed a great deal to school spirit. In May delicate pink-white blossoms announced the coming of spring as the two groups joined in a semi-formal dance following the department's presentation of A Night of Music.

ADJUSTING THE TYPEWRITER, Miss Dorothea Moore finds she must be a mechanic in order to teach typing practices.

Business groups study stocks and insurance

Ringling bells, flashing lights and occasional ticking sounds kept the room in an organized panic. The imagined image of a stock brokerage became a reality for many office practice students as they entered the efficient office of Abbott, Proctor and Paine. When the classes decided to visit the firm, they did not plan on any unexpected changes in the market; the day before their visit, however, 7 million shares of stock changed hands. Though told they they would encounter utter confusion, the group found only a quiet chaos. Everyone watched the ticker tape as stock transfers registered on a giant board of lights. An employee explained all phases of the stock market to the visitors while they witnessed actual practices. The trip climaxed a class papers and taught their fellow students from the data they had collected.

In a year of classroom participation, young business leaders in the general business classes did research in the field of insurance. With the help of a previously prepared bulletin board, groups demonstrated their findings through speeches.

Typing classes grew along with Douglas Freeman. More and more Rebels wished to acquire the skill for use in jobs or at college. Enrollment reached a new height as one class accommodated 43 people. To fulfill a need, the business department added five new electric typewriters and two calculating machines.

In room 102, Miss Neil Ward taught the subjects she had once taken at DSF. The first returning alumna to join the faculty became acquainted with students in Shorthand I and General Business. Miss Marian Breedon continued to teach Shorthand II, Bookkeeping and Office Practice while Miss Dorothea Moore handled Typing I and II.

IN A NOISY ROOM all is quiet for Phyllis Baughan except the monotonous click and register of an office adding machine.

"STEADY, THERE!" Surrounded by watchful sophomores, Phys. Ed. instructor Jon Massello directs the building of a live pyramid.

"Silhouette in White" is theme of Gymboree

In the hushed gymnasium, eerie figures holding luminous batons moved across the darkened floor. Weaving in intricate patterns, sophomore physical education boys dressed in black and white outfits led a ghostly parade before the audience of the 1961 Gymboree. Centering around the theme, "Silhouette in White," the biennial production staged by the Physical Education Department presented a spectacle of coordinated exercises and gymnastic feats of skill. The impressive sight of a human pyramid built upon the parallel bars thrilled spectators, who also admired the effortless grace with which agile students went through their paces on the sidehorse, the high bar, the rings and the trampoline.

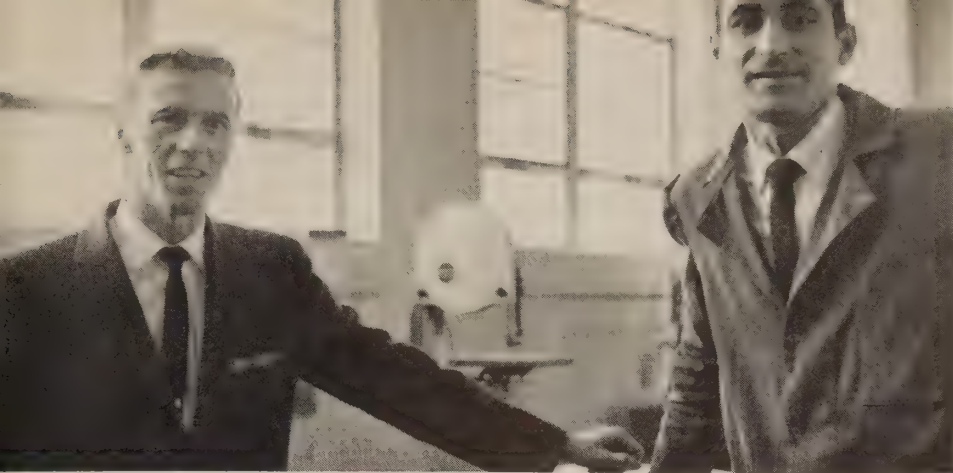

Previously the physical education classes had watched movies of the 1959 Gym Show as a preview of their own exhibition, April 13 and 14.

While studying health, sophomore girls organized into groups to prepare research projects on different phases of the human anatomy. Artistry, documentation and field work combined to produce charts, papers and scrapbooks, in which the emphasis was on originality and thoroughness of the material covered. One team of girls, interested in crippling diseases, visited the Crippled Children's Hospital to obtain case studies.

With the coming of cool weather, classes came indoors to the gymnasium where the boys mastered numerous tricks and stunts requiring suppleness. Shifting from the outdoor sports, the girls alternated in three week periods between the classroom and the gym where they enjoyed cheering on their favorite basketball team, the "Dulin Devils" or the "Lawrencers."

Shop, Home Economics train future homeowners

"Steady, bang, ouch!" accompanied the housebuilding tasks of the shop classes as they found fingers an easier target than nails. Workers could visualize future homes while constructing model houses to be used as teaching aids. Coffee tables, beside tables, and a child's toy box were a few of the projects made in class.

Department aims included expanding the department to a combined wood and metal shop. Mechanical drawing added a third year class.

With the season of red and green, Home Economics girls captured the holiday spirit in Christmas decorations and party foods. Planning, preparing and serving meals gave students simulated home experience while sewing taught practical skills.

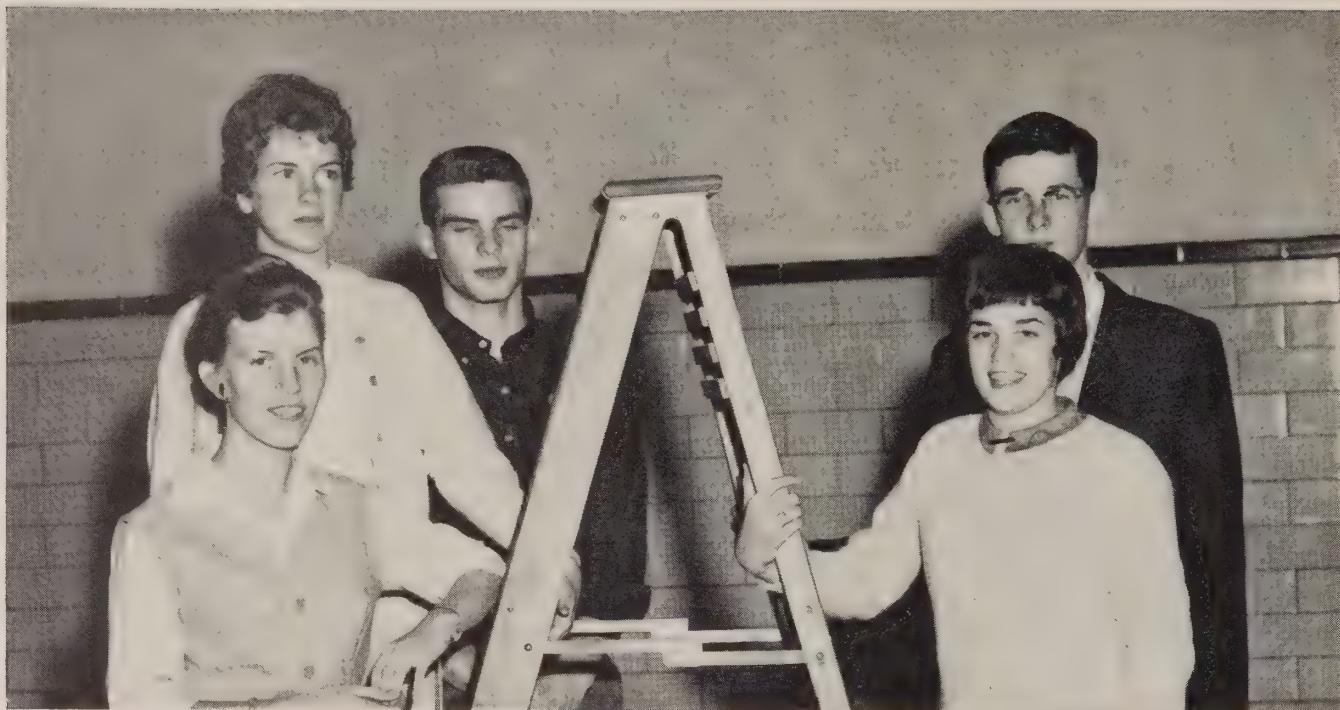

ABSORBED IN FINISHING a project, sophomore John Crawford works on his lamp industriously.

Class stunts and projects unify Rebels

Throughout the years spent at Douglas Freeman, students separate into groups or perhaps remain independent, but the greatest unifying factor is classes. Rebels identify themselves as sophomores, juniors, or seniors, and it is with their grade level that students engage in class activities. Sophomores combine their talents to produce dynamic gymborees; juniors set themes for Talent Nights; seniors present superb class plays. Class members who contribute derive the most pleasure from high school life; Douglas Freeman gains most from those who contribute.

Earnest Sophomores adopt DSF traditions

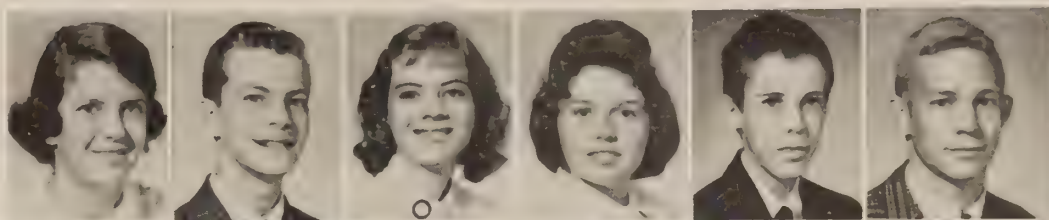

"Who hid room 107?" tumbled from the lips of an excited sophomore as the first day of a vibrant school year began. Rebels, roaming the halls in avid search of a chemistry laboratory or a French class, hustled from room to room with lively confusion. While becoming acquainted with a new system of class period timings, sophomores dashed with varied speeds from the east side of DSF to the west.

Sophomore class membership this year surpassed the total enrollment of any class since the organization of Douglas Freeman in 1954. This additional financial strain on the class budget was relieved by class dues combined with other class projects including a bake sale.

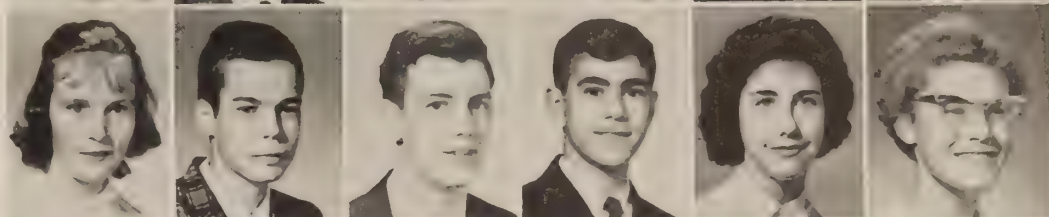

New Orleans' celebration of the elaborate Mardi Gras was re-created at the annual sophomore dance. Weeks of preparation, class interest, hard work, and an efficient clean-up committee brought results which were worthy of the time spent in producing the spectacle. The gymnasium's familiar physical fitness equipment and the frequently used, spacious bleachers, occupying three portions of the gym wall, relinquished their places to admit the Mardi Gras enchantment. Multicolored balloons hung from the transformed DSF ceiling. Sidewalk shops enhanced the excitement of enthusiastic couples gayly dancing in the masquerade magic. The dance was a refreshing finale to a year filled with readjustment and confusion.

Class rings regretfully relinquished for a time

"He's taking my ring!" shouted a flustered junior classman in misery. Against all opposition, a brave Balfour representative took the cherished class rings back to the company to engrave students' initials on the inside; but after his long-anticipated return, all former sorrows diminished.

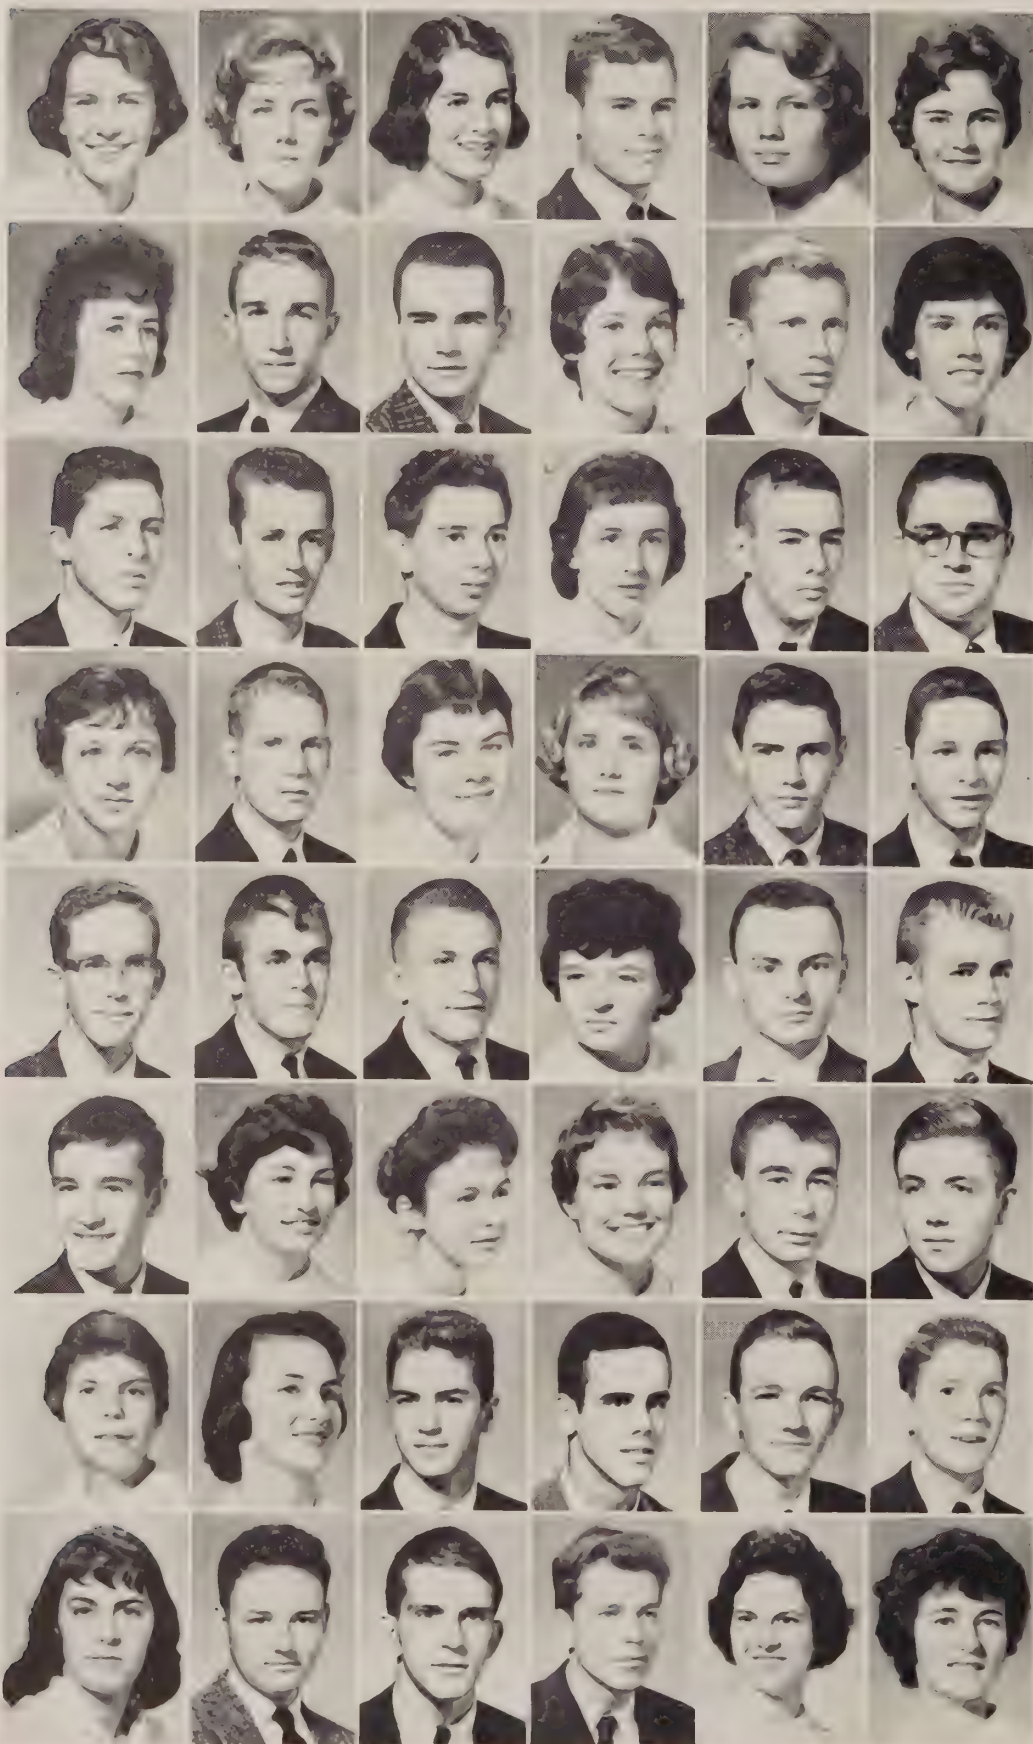

Fun-loving juniors gradually turned their attention to a more serious problem concerning college application and admission. To inform these frustrated ones, Miss Faye Hill sponsored a class designed especially to answer questions about post-graduation plans.

A bubbling night spot, filled with guest stars from every field of entertainment, came vividly alive as Junior Talent Night presented "A Knight on Broadway." The "Great White Way" background changed for one scene from a laughter-filled night spot to the popular Radio City Music Hall headlining the Rockettes.

This year the Douglas Freeman Parent-Teachers Association stimulated the P-TA membership drive by offering a gift of $100 to the class having the largest membership. After weeks of prodding and pushing, the junior class collected the highly valued gift by achieving a record of forty-five per cent membership.

Filling the gym with dancing and laughter, a lawn party, complete with decorated glass lanterns and an artistic water fountain, brought summertime sooner than expected as the junior class held their annual formal dance.

Freemamites graduate after seven-year duration

"Never before and never again!" could describe the graduating Class of 1961 as they depart from DSF after a duration of seven years. No class in the forthcoming history of DSF will possess this coveted distinction of having witnessed Douglas Freeman's expansion which led to the ultimate loss of the lower grades to other schools. Entering as youthful sixth graders, they leave as young adults, reminiscent about Douglas Freeman basketball games, homecoming parades, and laughter-filled school excursions.

Fuming Mount Fujiyama in the distance brought the delighted guests of the Douglas Freeman Senior Court Dance close to Japanese reality. Cherry-blossomed trees, decking the converted gym wall, led toward an ivy-covered bridge above a glistening, azure pool.

After completing exams early, the Class of 1961 made Camp Kentwood the scene of a gay combination splash party, tennis match, and "loafing" contest at their annual spring picnic.

The solemn strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" heralded the end of high school careers but signalled the beginning of new worlds to conquer for the graduates.

Rebels serve the community after school

At the sound of the 3:33 bell, Douglas Freeman expands into the surrounding community. Rebels crowd through exits and pour onto the lawn, each ready to assume his after-school role. Some don aprons and step behind counters of nearby stores to fill orders of fellow classmates and other patrons; others visit parents in parent-owned businesses that serve the Tuckahoe District. The pencils that jot down assignments, the clothes that are characteristic of "Freeman fads," and even the many cars in the parking lot are all products of the community. The community belongs to Douglas Freeman; Douglas Freeman belongs to the community.

After commencement, what are you going to commence?

Before you make your final decision, consider a telephone career. You'll start with good pay. What's more, you'll earn frequent raises as you learn. And the training you receive is excellent. You'll also enjoy interesting work, friendly people and pleasant surroundings. And you'll have the satisfaction of serving your own community. So why not commence a rewarding career with a telephone job?

Dear Betty,

Best wishes, always!
you know, you're the best example to live by. (the John's have really had it this year.)

I hope your shoulder hasn't gotten water logged this year. We'll probably build a swimming pool next year! Be good (I know, it's too much to ask!) this summer and enjoy the free refreshments!  (Church Key)

Love ya,

Fran Janett

P.S. Meet ya at the Rapids!
